FORBES ACCUSED IN REPORT

Alleged to Have "Winked At"
Corrupt Practices.

READ INTO INQUIRY'S RECORD

Charges Contained in a Report Made to Major General O'Ryan by Judge A. E. Graupner, Chairman of the Rehabilitation Committee of the American Legion at San Francisco, Essence of Report.

Washington, Oct. 24.—The implication that Colonel Charles R. Forbes, former director of the veterans' bureau, had "participated in" or "winked at" corrupt practices in connection with the veterans' bureau tuberculosis hospital site near Livermore, Cal., was read into the record of the senate investigation of the bureau by Major General John O'Ryan, counsel for the committee conducting the inquiry.

It was contained in a report made to O'Ryan by Judge A. E. Graupner, chairman of the rehabilitation committee of the American Legion at San Francisco. The report says:

"On June 28, 1922, Colonel Forbes was in San Francisco stopping at the Fairmont hotel. At that time the American Legion was satisfied that the transactions relating to the Livermore hospital were shady.

"John R. Quinn, the commander of the American Legion, and A. E. Graupner, the district chairman of the rehabilitation committee, the secretary of the committee and the director of publicity of the committee of the legion called upon Director Forbes in his room in order to discuss the matter.

"At that time charges were made directly to Colonel Forbes that the purchase of the property was surrounded by graft; that the plans for the hospital were such as to excite suspicion and that the circumstances surrounding the open cultivation of the farm crop on the Livermore site were such as to lead the American Legion to believe that Colonel Forbes was participating in or openly winking at the corrupt transaction.

"At that time Director Forbes made no denial of any of the allegations made to him by the American Legion, and his whole justification seemed to be that as long as the property had been acquired and was suited to the purpose of a tubercular hospital, it was no concern of the American Legion what was paid for the property or how the money was disposed of.

"From that time on the matter was subject to suspicion, and on March 1 charges were placed in the hands of Brigadier General Sawyer in Washington. The matter was also called to the attention of Director Hines upon his resuming office."

The report also dealt with the alleged activities of Matthew O'Brien, a San Francisco architect, who appeared in Washington with political endorsements for his employment. Charles Stratton, chief designer of the construction division of the bureau, testified that O'Brien was introduced to him by Forbes, who stated he had employed O'Brien to prepare plans for a tuberculosis hospital to be built on the Livermore site. O'Brien was furnished a set of standard plans, and later came back with a set of drawings which Stratton characterized as "very poorly executed." O'Brien, Stratton testified, received $64,000 for these plans, which were never used.

Miner Killed.

New Lexington, O., Oct. 24.—Michael Erwin, 46, Corning miner, was killed when caught under a fall of slate in the Ohio Collieries mine at Congo. He leaves a wife and eight children.

NEWS BRIEFS

A. H. Mitchell confessed to murdering Andrew Sherry and Mrs. Georgia Bryant, whose bodies were found in a house in Denver, Colo. Mitchell said jealousy of Sherry's attentions to Mrs. Bryant was the motive for the killing.

State police, searching for the body of Mrs. Nannie Dotson, believed to have been murdered two years ago, discovered remains of a woman and a child near the cabin of Ed Duncan, mountaineer, in Boone county, W. Va.

Three men were drowned when flood waters from the Washita river washed them over the power dam near Chickasaw, Okla.

General Pershing left for a three months' visit in France. He is accompanied on the trip by his sister, Mrs. D. M. Butler.

FRENCH SUPPORT SOUGHT

Promoters of Rhine Republic Submit Impossible Proposals.

Paris, Oct. 24.—Promoters of the Rhine republic, in exchange for French support, have agreed to pay 50 per cent of the reparations due from Germany; to force Germany to pay the remainder under threat of imposing an impossible tax on coal and Ruhr industries destined for the German interior; to accord France favored nation treatment, and to accomplish a union of Ruhr coke with French iron interests.

When the Rhine republic is firmly established France will bring the occupation troops home, permitting the Rhineland to maintain fortification of the German frontier with a large military establishment which will otherwise be maintained by the French.

Keen observers here believe the policy is doomed to rapid failure, because even if the republic wins with the passive aid of France, the moment the French army leaves the whole structure of the republic will fall like a house of cards. Only one-fifth of the population favor separation.

Klan in the Navy.

Washington, Oct. 24.—Secretary Denby has begun an investigation into the activities of the Ku Klux Klan among the personnel of the navy, it was learned. He has received numerous letters informing him that the Ku Klux has signed up many young sailors, and asking him what he would do about it. To all such inquiries Denby replied that it may be true that the Klan numbers bluejackets among its members, but that until there is some overt act or subversion of government, there is nothing to be done.

ATTACKED WITH CLEAVER

Birmingham's Twentieth Ax Victim Is Woman Storekeeper.

Birmingham, Ala., Oct. 24.—Mrs. Frank Romeo, 65, is dead, following an attack by a negro robber. Her daughter, Mrs. Juliet Vigilante, was injured seriously. The two women were in the small neighborhood store which they conducted when, according to Mrs. Vigilante, a negro entered and attacked them with a cleaver.

Birmingham police have been baffled by a long series of ax crimes. Besides 20 killed, 18 were wounded. Most of the victims have been storekeepers—usually foreigners running small establishments in outlying districts. Four of the killed were women. The crimes have been so frequent that proprietors of small stores have been warned repeatedly by police to lock their doors at sunset.

SIX FOUND DEAD

Oregon Farmer Kills Five Before Ending His Own Life.

Bend, Ore., Oct. 24.—Six persons lost their lives in what is believed to be a murder and suicide plot at Deschutes, near here. The dead are: Ed Chase, his three young children, a widowed sister, Mrs. Anna Tordes, and her child. Investigation led authorities to the belief that Chase killed the other members of his household, set the farm house on fire and then shot himself. The bodies of the six were found in the ashes of the house.

WALTON OUT AS GOVERNOR

Indicted By Solons on Two
Articles of Impeachment.

TRAPP NOW CHIEF EXECUTIVE

Score of Additional Articles Remain to Be Passed Upon by the Oklahoma House of Representatives. State Senate Resolves Itself Into a Court of Impeachment—Walton to Start Fight to Retain His Office.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Oct. 24.—Governor J. C. Walton was indicted on two articles of impeachment preferred before the house of representatives and was suspended from office by the senate. Lieutenant Governor M. E. Trapp now is Oklahoma's chief executive.

Only a few minutes elapsed between the governor's indictment on one count and his removal from authority.

Notified of the house's verdict, upon the first charge, the upper branch of the assembly immediately adopted, by a vote of 38 to 1, a resolution declaring that filing of the article "automatically suspends J. C. Walton as governor and the office with its duties and compensations devolves upon the lieutenant governor."

Walton refused to make any comment whatsoever. Trapp was in Sapulpa and was notified quickly of the action by both bodies. While the senate was stripping Walton of executive power the house was voting his impeachment on a second article, the decision being transmitted forthwith to the senate chamber that it might be included in the bill of particulars.

Today the senate was resolved into a court of impeachment by Chief Justice J. F. Johnson of the state supreme court and proceeded immediately upon trial of the charges submitted to it by the house board of managers, who were appointed by Speaker W. D. McBee. Six days will be allowed defendant and prosecutor to prepare for trial.

The impeached governor's friends predict that Walton will commence his fight at once to retain office. He is expected to issue a pardon. Secretary of State Sneed will refuse to attest it. The beneficiary will, therefore, swear out a writ of habeas corpus in the criminal court of appeals. The senate's suspension power will be put to the test, but the members contend that the senate ranks even the supreme court and its judicial acts are supreme and final.

Governor Walton was impeached, first, upon a charge of felonious diversion of health department funds for the purpose of paying his private chauffeur's salary of $200 a month. It was sustained without debate by a vote of 80 ayes to 17 nays. The second article alleged violation of the state constitution in preventing assembling and functioning of a legally called grand jury in Oklahoma county by the exercise of military power. The vote was 75 ayes against 23 nays. Twenty additional articles remain to be determined.

HARVEY DECLARES IT'S UP TO EUROPE

America Still Prepared to Participate in Conference.

London, Oct. 24.—The United States government is still prepared to participate in a European conference to fix the amount of German reparations to avert economic disaster.

This message was delivered by Ambassador George Harvey at a farewell banquet given him by the Pilgrims society.

"A year ago it was apparently the universal opinion in Europe that the crux of the settlement lay in the determination of the amount of reparations Germany could really pay. America came to the door of Europe and, lo and behold, the door was closed. The United States was not wanted. What could any self-respecting nation do? The United States went home.

"Conditions on the continent have changed somewhat during the last 11 months, but there is no material difference in the fundamental situa-

DOINGS IN OHIO

Taxis Held Public Utilities.

Columbus, Oct. 24.—Taxicabs were held to be public utilities and their owners were held responsible for acts committed by drivers on any trips made in a company's car at any time by an Ohio supreme court decision. The ruling came in the case of Korner & Son, Bucyrus taxi owners, against Gladys Cosgrove, who had won a suit against the company in the lower courts for the actions of a driver employed by Korner. Miss Cosgrove's victory was upheld.

Self-Inflicted Wound Fatal.

Marion, O., Oct. 24.—Charles B. Orwig died here from self-inflicted bullet wounds. Orwig, a candidate for state treasurer in 1920, shot himself through the head while seated in his automobile near Marion. Despondency over ill health resulting from loss of a leg by a shell explosion during the world war is given as the motive for the act.

Case of Typhus Found.

Columbus, Oct. 24.—Mrs. Barnabas Vass, East Columbus, is suffering from typhus fever, health officials announced. It is the first typhus case in the history of this city and one of very few ever reported in Ohio. The Vass home has been quarantined. The disease is highly contagious, the mortality rate ranging from 10 to 60 per cent.

Child Shot.

Dayton, O., Oct. 24.—Mary Jane Evans, 4-year-old daughter of Gilbert Evans, negro, was shot and probably fatally wounded by her brother, Gilbert, aged 6, in a bedroom of the Evans home, the bullet striking the child in the breast and passing through her body.

Rail Deal Rumored.

Chillicothe, O., Oct. 24.—It is reported here that Columbus and Cleveland interests may purchase the Chillicothe street railway lines. One local official denied negotiations were being conducted, but admitted the property was being "looked over."

Infant Burned to Death.

Gallipolis, O., Oct. 24.—The year-old daughter of Mr. Root, Hocking Valley telegraph operator, was burned to death here when the home burned to the ground. Mr. Root was seriously burned when he attempted to save his daughter.

Plant Burns.

Mt. Vernon, O., Oct. 24.—Fire in the plant of the MacGee-Starr Granite company here completely destroyed the plant and caused damage estimated at between $40,000 and $50,000. Defective wiring was thought to have caused the blaze.

Three Killed at Crossing.

Ashtabula, O., Oct. 24.—Three persons were killed when a New York Central freight train struck an automobile at a crossing here. The dead: Mr. and Mrs. Emil Aho and son, Olavi, 5.

Dead at 115.

Kent, O., Oct. 24.—Mrs. Martha Allen, 115 years old, colored, is dead at her home here. She was the oldest resident of Portage county.

CLASHES OCCUR IN RHINELAND

Separatists Lose Aix la Chapelle, But Take Other Towns.

RED OUTBREAK AT HAMBURG

Communists Storm and Capture Several Dozen Killed and 150 Wounded During the Fighting—Bavaria Demands Removal of Minister Gessler—Developments in Germany.

Berlin, Oct. 24.—The slow disintegration of the German reich, which began through the attempt of Minister of the Reichswehr Gessler and General Von Seeckt to dismiss the Bavarian general, Von Lossow, was characterized by the spread of the separatist movement in some Rhineland sections and by setbacks in other districts.

There were clashes and disorders in a number of cities. Aix-la-Chapelle, earliest citadel of the separatists, was recaptured by loyal Germans, chiefly organized labor, who drove the separatists out of the city. Wiesbaden, however, was taken by the separatists, organized labor immediately answering with a general strike.

Bonn was also taken by the separatists, which was made easy through French orders that the loyal Germans may not use arms against them. Despite this, there was some shooting. Treves is also reported taken.

Fresh fuel was added to the quarrel between Bavaria and Berlin through General Von Lossow sending a wireless to all principal reichswehr garrisons throughout Germany, practically calling on the reichswehr to revolt against the Berlin government, declaring that the place of Germany's national army is behind Bavaria, and not behind Berlin's "Marxistically influenced" government.

Salvos of rifle fire startled citizens of Hamburg. Communist bands stormed and took several outlying police stations of that city. Most of them were retaken by the police. Several dozens of persons have been killed in the fighting and 150 wounded.

The fighting was particularly severe in the suburb of Barnbeck, where the communists threw up barricades in the streets and fought from the housetops. The police, after a loss of five dead and 20 wounded, have the situation in hand. All street traffic has been ordered suspended.

The city council of Berlin has decided to ration bread and will reissue bread cards. The majority of bakeries in Berlin were completely empty by noon, the small supply of bread being quickly sold.

Removal of Otto Gessler as minister of the reichswehr by the national government and a new constitution for Germany—that promises to be the price demanded by Bavaria before she re-enters the family of German states. "We want another constitution, not the Weimar socialistic constitution centralizing all power in the hands of the Berlin government," said Dictator Von Kahr.

BOOTLEG RING ALLEGED

Means, Under Indictment, Demands Congressional Investigation.

New York, Oct. 24.—A congressional investigation of a national bootleg ring headed by two high government officials in Washington is demanded by Gaston B. Means, former department of justice agent, in answer to his federal indictment on liquor charges just disclosed here. Means declares the indictment is the work of the bootleg ring which is trying to discredit him just when he was about to reveal the results of his secret investigation which he says he was commissioned to make by a high government official. Means charges he was forced out of the department of justice service last year by these same officials who are the "brains" of the bootleggers. Four prominent New York lawyers are involved in the ring by Means who says that the ring operated on an immense scale through liquor withdrawal permits secured in Washington without the knowledge of Director Haynes.

Means and Elmer W. J. Jarnecke, a former Chicago egg dealer, are specifically charged with swindling the government out of more than $2,000,000 worth of liquor withdrawal permits, at a profit of $100,000 to themselves.

Auto Driver Killed.

Dayton, O., Oct. 24.—A. Farrell, 28, was instantly killed when his automobile ran into a telephone pole.

DINE WITH COOLIDGE

Republican Leaders and Capitalists Assure Him of Support.

Washington, Oct. 24.—Money magnates and Republican leaders lunched with President Coolidge and afterwards conferred with him at length. While there was no official announcement following the meeting, it is understood to have had these outstanding objects: To assure the president that the old guard in the organization has taken as a foregone conclusion that he has to be the standard-bearer in 1924, and that they are banking on him, and to assure ample finances for his campaign and for the party, with him at the helm.

The president's guests were: John T. Adams, chairman of Republican national committee; Fred W. Upham, treasurer; C. H. Huston, chairman of ways and means committee; former Governor Sproul, Pennsylvania; E. T. Stotesbury, Philadelphia; W. R. Wrigley, Chicago; James H. Stanley, Denver, and Frank Stearns, Boston.

Incidental matters, such as the city to be favored with the next national convention, were discussed. Chicago is making the usual determined effort to secure the gathering, with Denver as the principal contender, it was stated.

Lloyd George at Cleveland.

Cleveland, Oct. 24.—In two addresses delivered here David Lloyd George, Britain's war premier, repeated his plea for American aid in the rehabilitation of Europe. The first address was delivered at a chamber of commerce luncheon, where the former premier was introduced by former Secretary of War Baker. Mayor Kohler made the formal address of welcome. At the other meeting, held in the open air at the site of the public library now under construction, Lloyd George had his largest American audience. It is estimated that fully 100,000 persons heard the address.

REFUSES TO TESTIFY

Judge Lindsey Alleges Illegal Operations on Part of Physicians.

Denver, Oct. 24.—Judge Ben D. Lindsay, famous juvenile court judge, summoned to appear before the grand jury to explain his statement that "illegal operations by physicians had cut Denver's birth rate in two," declared in an open letter to the grand jury that he would go to jail before he would reveal any information given him in confidence by high school girls and other young women. "I have every respect for the purpose of the grand jury in summoning me to testify as to what I know about illegal operations," Judge Lindsay said. "I believe there were 1,000 such operations in Denver last year. But I shall refuse to tell the grand jury anything that has come to me in hundreds of confidences received from women and girls who come to this office for help."

Mrs. Catherine Bristol of Baltimore was granted a new trial in her $150,000 damage suit against John Kelly of Atlanta, Ga., whom she charges furnished her poisoned liquor that resulted in partial loss of her eyesight.

Craze for Things of Spanish Style

Shawl Vogue Is Increasing Among American Women Seeking Colors.

A well-known artist who is a keen observer of the trend of the times has expressed the opinion that women are becoming color-blind, says a fashion writer in the New York Times. He believes they are indulging in such extravagance of color in their dress and surroundings that their eyes will lose their appreciation of values and after a time will no longer be able to tell one color from another. With true masculine cynicism, this painter who sees no inconsistency in blue grass, green skies, and pink snow on canvas, comments thus regarding the fashionable woman of today and her wardrobe.

It is undoubtedly a season of riotous color. We have been coming to it rather casually, but the craze for the Egyptian type started the correspondingly lavish use of dyes, and now there appears in the latest styles only enough of black, white and the quieter tones to emphasize the intensity of the hues in the new gowns, wraps and millinery and even in the jewelry.

While the other side of the world is engulfed in blackest night of mourning, we, on two shores of the Atlantic, are reveling in the gayest, the most bizarre, and the costliest, fairly intoxicated by the wealth of it all. The windows of the big shops are ablaze with fabrics fit to adorn a Sheba or a Solomon. The best talent of European attellers has been engaged in creating for present-day wear such combinations and high lights in the weave and sheen of dress goods as make the leaders of fashion of earlier days look like doves. The designs are painted with a large brush, and the colors are an education in art.

The latest phase of this delirium is inspired by Spain, and there is a craze for things Spanish. The Spanish shawl has always been used for picture purposes, for fancy costumes, in house decoration and on the stage. But only lately have smart women worn it as a practical wrap, as they wear the newest and most stereotyped French cape or coat.

For two years past this vogue has been increasing. American women acquiring very slowly a taste for the things of Latin Europe. King Tut led us so far into the land of symbols, hitherto strange to us, that the sunniness of Spanish color and pattern is graceful, and suddenly the whole Spanish scheme of costuming is upon us.

Spanish Shawl of Old.

The traditional Spanish shawl, that with which we are most familiar, Carmen's cloak of witchery, is one of many-colored flowers embroidered on a white ground, to be wrapped about the figure in a way made famous by the cigarette girl of Bizet's opera. But Carmen probably never dreamed of its possibilities in the hands of the modistes of the Twentieth century.

The many-colored shawl is still shown, the designs exaggerated until roses are embroidered the size of dinner plates. Made to harmonize with modern dress, the shawls are of one or two colors, the number and variety fairly bewildering. In black and white, yellow and white, royal purple and white, in raisin upon mayne, heliotrope upon gendarme blue, orange upon flame color, scarlet upon petunia, and so on through the possible blendings. Some of them are enchanting, and now, the style having taken hold, the shawls are finding eager purchasers.

Designers of fashions find many charming adaptations of the Spanish shawl. As an evening wrap over a gown of black velvet it has an assured vogue. Over black or ivory satin nothing could be more stunning. In a day when society dashes madly from one diversion to another, women find the shawl a joy because it can be so easily and so quickly thrown on.

The fringe on the shawls is now made extremely long, trailing the carpet of the smart restaurants, where it is seen in all its glory. In a handsome model an all-white shawl is draped gracefully over a white satin gown severely made. Black and gray over orange, and white over jade green are some of the other combinations evolved as imagination soars. For day wear the shawl is a comfort to be drawn over the shoulders in the cool air. It makes a delightful tea gown, with foundation of soft satin or chiffon, and a luxury as a dressing gown. However used, the Spanish shawl is loved for itself, its beauty and its softness. No metallic note is found in it.

Vogue for Spanish Lace.

Like so many novelties that find their way to us from afar, this feature of the dress of a south European country is accepted without question as being Spanish. The women of Spain wear the shawl, but it is embroidered by Chinese and Filipinos. In fact, the Spaniards speak of it as the Manton Manila, and surely none but Oriental wizards with the needle could create those wonders that look as if they had never been touched by human hands.

Spanish lace has been more easily brought into vogue over here and for several reasons has been growing in popularity. Some lovely gowns made entirely of the lace are shown by representative houses, usually in black. Its silky softness is much liked, and the addition of a bit of jet, a colored girdle, a garniture of flowers, gives chic to many of them. The introduction of the lace in deep flounces, on the skirt, for sleeves, collars, berthes, capes and scarfs, or as a part of the gown itself, is shown in many graceful models.

One of the most attractive designs seen this season from a New York couturiere is a dancing frock of ivory Spanish lace made over a slip of peach-colored satin. It was built in the style of the sixties, with full skirt of ankle length, snug bodice and a wide ruffle of the lace around the décolleté neck. A trailing spray of flowers at one side finished a slender girdle of silver cord. A drop skirt of pale rose chiffon, upon which was sewn a deep band of silver lace showing through the outer skirt, made a most enchanting costume.

Spanish lace is now dyed in a great variety of delicate shades for evening gowns, and in one respect is economical, because so little trimming is required. That anything so fanciful in dress can endure is unlikely, but for the time Spain and things Spanish are very much in the limelight.

With Spanish shawls and gowns of Spanish lace come irresistibly the fan, the comb and other accessories. Fans are exceedingly smart. They are of lace with sticks of amber, shell, ivory or mother of pearl, some studded with brilliants. Feather fans are the most fashionable. They are shown in gorgeous plumes and novelty feathers, and are regarded as the quintessence of elegance.

One part of a Spanish woman's dress is likely not to be adopted by her American sisters; that is the mantilla. Maturity of thought and beauty comes so early under the skies of Spain, that the mantilla is accepted. But one cannot fancy a Spanish mantilla with bobbed or plastered locks and the general flapper makeup.

Smaller Things Get Attention.

In a season so ornate and colorful as the present, with flowers, wraps and furs worth a king's ransom being worn, the smaller things of the toilet quite logically follow the line. Apropos Spanish shawls and gowns and laces, the most bewitching slippers to be worn with lace dance frocks are shown in satin and metal brocades. They are to be had in dainty shades in many different styles, with expensive buckles or ornaments of rhinestones, or rosettes of lace. The fancy sandals of the summer are repeated in these shoes with numerous variations.

Buckles are both large and small. Ribbon bows, fan-shaped ornaments and tiny jeweled buttons are among the popular trimmings for setting up an evening shoe, and the heel must be French or Spanish, a heel de luxe on a slipper of white and silver brocade being studded with rhinestones. The stockings are more sheer and fancy than ever before. Medallions of chantilly are let into the instep of black or white silk stockings, and some exceptionally dainty lace patterns extend from the vamp to the boot top. One hears less now of the French or the Cuban heel. It must be the Spanish heel, particularly on shoes for afternoon, which differ little except in color from evening slippers.

GOOD ADVICE.

All that Circleville needs to start an industrial revival is for its citizens to forget self and join hands in a whole hearted movement in bolstering up industry.

If each person will forget petty personal jealousy, stop knocking and begin to boost in an effective manner the city can easily double its population in five years at the same time doubling the value of every foot of property in the city. Boost, don't knock.

Bells Worn by Priests.
Innumerable and interesting are the traditions surrounding bells. Bells, or substitutes therefor, have ever played an important part in religious ceremonies. In the books of Exodus and Ecclesiastes the ornaments of the high priest's ephod include bells, so that "their sound might be heard whenever he goeth in or cometh out of the sanctuary." Their use in the eastern church obtains even to this day, bells being found as they were of old on the fringe of priestly garments.

REINDEERS GLUT MARKET; U. S. TO SOLVE PROBLEM

Animals Have Multiplied Too Rapidly in Alaska.

Seattle, Wash.—Confronted with the problem of having so many reindeer he does not know what to do with them, Uncle Sam, through his division of education in Alaska, is reorganizing the service. W. L. Lopp, superintendent of education of the natives in northern Alaska, has been ordered to remove his office at once to Anchorage.

The reindeer service in the past year has completely outgrown its organization, the animals having multiplied so rapidly their number in excess of 300,000. During this season 80,000 calves were born.

Most of the natives are facing the difficulty of possessing herds so large they cannot handle them and some plan must be devised for marketing the animals.

The big herds of the government have increased rapidly and the fixing of boundaries of ranges for the reindeer must be done at once. At present the innumerable herds of reindeer are roaming the public domain.

Native herders who started out five or six years ago with two dozen reindeer have become owners of 1,000 to 5,000. From 11 individual herds in 1918 there has been an increase to 109 herds in August this year.

The discovery of large areas of reindeer moss on the northern slopes of Mount McKinley resulted in a herd of 1,800 reindeer being driven there for pasturage. This summer this herd nearly doubled.

At this time of year caribou pass the interior settlements on their southward trend to winter quarters, and settlers lay in their winter's supply of meat free of cost. Reindeer cannot hope to become a meat product until the caribou cease to pass human habitations.

During this season from 6,000 to 10,000 frozen reindeer carcasses passed through here en route to New York, distributing point for Nome reindeer shippers. Alaska's tundras and moss regions are capable of feeding 1,000,000 reindeer.

Retrieves Fortune in Silver From Garbage

Los Angeles, Cal.—A fortune is lost every year in the knives, forks and spoons which accidentally go into the garbage cans in Los Angeles, according to a number of cafe and restaurant owners, who are the principal sufferers.

One restaurant reported a loss of nearly $40,000 in silverware last year. Some of this was carried away by patrons, but most of it was sent to the hog farms near here by way of the garbage can.

Private families are not so heedless of their silverware. It is said, but public eating houses suffer heavy losses because of the carelessness of employees.

A man has entered the business of recovering the lost silverware from the farms, and knives, forks and spoons bearing the names of the cafes owning them are returned at a small cost.

Ant-Eating Bear Trapped in Brazil

Above is shown Antonio Bergelt, a hunter for C. Bruce Chapman, F. Z. S., with an ant-eating bear that he trapped in Brazil. It is now at the zoo at London. This animal and its companion are the first species to be seen for forty years. They live on ants, which they scoop up with their long bills.

Thrashed Ex-Kaiser When He Was a Youth

London.—The death occurred here recently of Alfred Russell Price, and passed almost unheeded, whereas it was worthy of special notice, for he succeeded in accomplishing what thousands of Americans have failed to do, but could not. He gave the boy, who later became German emperor, a good, sound thrashing.

It happened years ago when Wilhelm was the crown prince and was visiting Ilfracombe, an English seaside, resort, with his tutor, Wilhelm, in a playful, destructive mood, began to throw stones at some bathing machines belonging to Mr. Price's father. He was told to stop, but took exception to this infringement of his regal rights. Young Price took off his coat and began to belabor the royal youth so successfully that he had administered a black eye and several cuts and bruises before the tutor succeeded in calling off hostilities.

Invention of Electric Light.

The credit for the basic discovery of the electric light is probably due to Sir Humphry Davy, who in 1810 observed the electric arc and produced incandescence of a fine platinum wire in connection with his experiments with a 2,000-cell battery. In 1862 an arc lamp was installed in the lighthouse at Dungeness, in 1879 the Edison incandescent lamp was exhibited, and in 1882 the Pearl street Edison station in New York was put in service.

RIVER IS 2,000 MILES LONG

Alexander the Great Bridged the Indus in India and Led His Army Into the Punjab.

The Indus is one of the three great rivers of northern India. It has its source in the glaciers of the mountain region of the north, and after flowing across the hill country, inhabited by the fanatical tribes, of which Kipling wrote, it comes out upon the plains of India, which it crosses, flowing to the southwest, and emptying into the Arabian sea a little south of the frontier of Baluchistan. The distance in a straight line from source to mouth is 1,500 miles, but if the curves of the river be taken into account, the river has a length of 2,000 miles.

The Indus enters the sea through several mouths, thereby forming a large delta, and on the extreme western end of this delta stands the port of Karachi, the capital of the Province of Sind and the gateway for the trade of the Punjab and a large part of central India. The city has a population of about 125,000. It has a large export trade in wheat, oilseeds, cotton, wool and hides. It contains extensive iron works and other manufacturing factories. Karachi is 500 miles by sea from Bombay.

It will be remembered that when Alexander the Great, the Macedonian conqueror, invaded northern India, he came to the River Indus, bridged it, and crossing in the year 326 B. C., led his army into the Punjab. His victorious career continued for a time, but finally his troops refused to advance further, and Alexander was compelled to turn back. He died on the homeward march.

Princess Led Stormy Life.

Princess Tarakanoff was the daughter of Empress Elizabeth of Russia and Alexis Rozumoffski, whom the empress had secretly married. She was carried away at the age of twelve by Prince Radzivil and concealed in a convent in Rome. This step was taken by the dissatisfied noble to curb the ambition of Catherine, who then ruled. But it failed, and her favorite, Alexis Orloff, himself pretending great discontent against the government of Catherine, prevailed upon the princess, in the absence of Radzivil, to marry him, return to Russia and incite a new insurrection. The young and unsuspecting princess had no sooner placed herself in his power than she was seized while on board a ship in the bay of Leghorn. She was bound in chains and carried to St. Petersburg. In December, 1777, a violent rising of the Nera suddenly forced the waters into her prison cell and she was drowned before assistance could reach her.

U. S. TRAINING SCHOOLS FOR WHITE GIRLS PLANNED

Construction on Institution to Start in Maryland.

Washington.—A new national training school for girls is to be established on the Ludlow farm, Prince George's county, Md., in the immediate future, it was learned following the recording of the sale of the Ludlow farm site to the government by Oliver E. Pagan. Construction of living quarters for the girls will be started immediately, it was said, and the Pagan home will be converted into an administration building and a home for the teachers.

The sale was made to the Department of Justice, under which the institution is conducted, for $25,000. The estate comprises ten acres and accommodations will be provided for 150 white girls.

The present training school was reported last year to be inadequate, in a survey of social welfare institutions in the district, made by Dr. Hastings H. Hart, director in the department of child helping of the Russell Sage foundation. An appropriation of $52,000 was made by congress toward the erection of a new school for white girls, with the expectation that the present school would be used for colored girls.

The institution is maintained jointly by the district and the federal governments, girls being committed there by both the District and the United States courts.

It has not been decided, however, whether the present school will be used for colored girls, or whether the grounds and buildings will be sold and the proceeds used to build new modern cottage schools, for both white and colored girls.

The population of the national training school for girls now averages between 100 and 110, although the buildings are designed to accommodate 121.

Negotiations for the purchase of the Ludlow farm were completed when the sale was recorded in the Marlboro court house. The farm lies on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, between Amundale and Mulkrirk, and adjoins the government experimental farm in Prince George's county.

Chemical Formula Puts Pep in German Workers

Baltimore.—Both man and beast will be able to work very much harder than they do now and will get fat on it if a report from Germany proves to be true.

This secret of tremendously increasing working power without fatigue is said to lie in a chemical formula developed by Prof. Gustaf Embden of Frankfurt university. Sodium dihydrogen phosphate is said to have been given to German troops in the form of a drink during the war under conditions arranged by Doctor Embden, and the reports are that it enabled them to march much farther than their comrades who had not been given the drink, and without fatigue. Since the war it is said to have been given to coal miners with like results and experiments have been conducted on oxen.

Local physicians have not yet learned the detailed results of the experiments. Some say that continued use of the salt has resulted in irritation of the digestive tracts dangerous to health.

Boy and Girl Saved From Wrecked Motorboat

Brockville, Ont.—Three young men and three young women of Watertown and Alexandria Bay, N. Y., stood for 40 minutes waist deep in the heavy St. Lawrence river, after their motor boat had been wrecked, while two passing steamboats failed to answer their distress signals. They were rescued eventually by another motor boat.

They were Gladys McHenry, Lulu Tushette and Ruth Campbell of Watertown, and Roland Holloway, Early Bailey and Newton Russell of Alexandria Bay. The party was motorboating from Brockville to Alexandria Bay when their craft struck a submerged shoal and settled. By clinging to the half-sunken boat in the swift waters and holding to the meager footing afforded by the shoal all six managed to hold on until assistance arrived.

New Glider Record Made by Darmstadt Aviator

Gersfeld, Germany.—A glider record was established here by the Darmstadt aviator, Botsch, who covered a distance of 19 kilometers in a flight of one hour, attaining an altitude of 254 meters.

Martens, one of the last year's prize winners in the glider competition, covered 14 kilometers in a one-hour flight.

Weds Fiance's Brother, Empire, O.—When the time came for the ceremony which was to make Albert Gano and Miss Julia Mahalko, of this city, man and wife, Albert had disappeared. A wait followed. Then Albert's brother Michael, whispered to the bride-to-be, she nodded assent, and five minutes later she was Michael's wife.

Swell Resorts Spoil Bride.

"When I go on my honeymoon," remarked the cynical Mr. Schopenmann, who in the next breath is just as likely as not to tell you that he'll never get married, says the New York Sun and globe, "I'm going to take my blushing bride to a third-rate hotel at a place where the climate is intolerable and the service and food poor. So many bridegrooms make the mistake of taking their fair ones to favored resorts and putting up at the best hotels. The result is that the brides have something they can throw in friend husband's face when they get down to earth and a six-room cottage for life.

"I'll select a place so undesirable that the things I'll be able to provide for Mrs. S., subsequently will be magnificent by comparison."

Mesopotamia's Old Glories.

Nebuchadnezzar's vast irrigation system, which once watered all Babylonia, can still be easily traced for miles about Bagdad. One giant canal, the Narawan, runs parallel with the Tigris for nearly 300 miles; it is 350 feet wide, and all about it the takeoff and laterals may still be identified. Herodotus said he found a "forest of verdure from end to end" when he visited Mesopotamia.—National Geographic Society Bulletin.

FRIEDMAN'S
APPAREL FOR WOMEN

AMUSEMENTS

Scoring a decided hit at its premier Thomas Meighan's latest Paramount picture, "The Ne'er-Do-Well" was shown for the first time with great success at the Met theater last evening. This is a picturization of Rex Beach's well known novel of the same title.

Thomas Meighan in the Paramount Picture, "The Ne'er Do Well."

Kirk Anthony, played by Thomas Meighan, is the ne'er-do-well son of a wealthy man. As the result of a prank he finds himself on board a steamship bound for Panama without a cent in his pockets. He arrives, and the fun begins.

Luckily he meets Mrs. Cartlandt, a woman of means who obtains for him a position on the railroad as a conductor. While thus employed he encounters and falls in love with a charming Spanish girl. Their love romance is prolific of many interesting developments which combine to make "The Ne'er-Do-Well" one of the most entertaining picture shows here this season.

Lila Lee plays opposite Mr. Meighan with signal effect. The cast generally including Gertrude Astor, John Milern, Gus Weinberg and Laurance Wheat acquitted themselves artistically.

"The Captain and the Kids," a new musical cartoon attraction under the management of the Walfred Producing Co., Inc., will appear at the Grand Thursday, October 25.

The management promises a merry-go-round feast of songs, dances, splendid ensembles and the pranks introduced by the two mischievous youngsters who are known to all readers of the comic pages of the daily papers. Hans and Fritz, the Holland kiddies are best known for their rough treatment of der captain. Of course, their aunt receives her share of troubles, but nothing in comparison to the deal handed Uncle Heinie and der captain. The management promises a splendid cast of well known musical comedy players and a charming chorus of young misses who can sing and dance. "The Katzenjammer Kids" is a rare combination of wholesome comedy, whistling melodies, catchy song hits, smart ensembles, gorgeous costumes, nifty dancing and pretty girls. The book and lyrics are by Richard F. Carroll and music by Edward Hutchinson. It has a genuine plot, a corking good story which permits all sort of funny situations and is treated with the high-speed and sure laughter of the modern American musical show.

Old London Bridge.

The Romans had a ferry across the Thames at London. There was no bridge then in 993 when Anlaf, a Danish pirate, brought 93 ships up to taines. But shortly after a wooden bridge was built in the reign of Ethelred the Unready. In 1176 a stone bridge was resolved on. Peter, a clergyman, reputed to be the cleverest architect in the Kingdom was given the job and a tax put on wool to pay for it. This led to a story later on that the bridge was built of wool packs. Wooden piles were driven as close as possible and beams 10 inches thick bolted to their tops. On them the stonework began. The bridge was 900 feet long and had a roadway 20 feet broad. On each side were houses. One was a chapel with two priests to serve it. In 1180 a fire across the Thames drew a crowd there. On their way back, fire broke out at both ends of the bridge and a large number of people were burned to death or drowned.

Miss Hilda Rigby Addressed the Chamber of Commerce Tuesday.

One Hundred and Fifty Disabled Soldiers in Pickaway County—Organization Will Help Boys Get What is Due—Collected $8,000,000 for Japanese.

Miss Hilda Rigby, special field representative from Washington D. C., of the Red Cross, who is in charge of the Pickaway county branch, gave an outline of the work and what she has accomplished since coming here.

The talk was made before the chamber of commerce Tuesday evening and was most interesting. There are 150 disabled soldiers of the late war in this county alone and since establishing the branch here a number of these claims have been examined and papers sent in are now receiving attention and care, and in some cases they are receiving a monthly pension from the government.

So far $5000 has been secured in back pay and other relief. The claims are carefully scrutinized by the government and must be exact in every case. A false affidavit or misstatement often cancels the claim, so one must be very particular. Every soldier, who has a disability incurred while in the service of his country, is entitled to attention and all he needs to do is to see Miss Rigby at the chamber of commerce rooms at the Masonic temple and blanks will be made out and his claim sent in free of charge.

Miss Rigby also spoke of her work in organizing a Junior Red Cross in the schools for peace time work. This field has barely been touched, owing to the fact of the enormous amount of work required in getting out war claims of the disabled soldiers, but as soon as this work slack up more attention will be given to other branches of Red Cross work.

The Red Cross collected eight million dollars for the Japanese relief at a cost of eleven thousand dollars. This expense was met by the Red Cross alone and the Japanese sufferers received every cent collected. This county contributed $380 of this immense sum of money.

Granted New Trial.

Columbus, Oct. 24.—Robert Davis, convicted in the Adams county courts of first degree murder for the killing of George Webb Oct. 30, 1922, was granted a new trial by the state supreme court. Reversal was ordered on the ground that Fred Barnes, a member of the jury commission, was a brother-in-law of the man that was killed and that he had taken a hand in the selection of the jury to try Davis.

Wood to Pacify Moros.

Washington, Oct. 24.—Governor General Wood of the Philippines cabled the war department that he is leaving for the Moro country in Mindanao, where the tribes are reported to be in a revolutionary humor. The Moros are hereditary enemies of the Americans. It was pointed out, and are chafing under what they declare to be unnecessary police regulations executed by the Filipino constabulary. They are said to be moving for independence from the Philippines rather than from the United States.

CRABBE ACT UPHELD

Violator of Findlay Ordinance Loses In Ohio Supreme Court. Columbus, Oct. 24.—The Crabbe prohibition act and the city ordinances conforming to it were upheld by the supreme court in ruling on an appeal made by Charles White from his conviction of violating a Findlay ordinance against liquor.

White was guilty of illegal possession under the ordinance, which is identical with the Crabbe act. His conviction was affirmed by the court of appeals. He then went to the supreme court, claiming the Crabbe act and the ordinance to be unconstitutional because of an alleged discrimination—an immunity existing in the act in favor of occupants or owners of bona fide private dwellings, under which it is lawful for such occupant or owner to possess or give away intoxicants. He claimed this angle of the act gives immunity to the fortunate for an action which is a crime for the homeless.

BIG POTATOES

John C. Stevenson Raised 1140 Bushels of Spuds on 2.9 Acres.

The highest yield of potatoes reported in Pickaway county for the present year was made by John C. Stevenson, of Jackson, township. The potatoes were of the Carmen variety. The field contained by actual measurement 2.9 acres and yielded 1140 bushels, or an average of 393 bushels per acre. The potatoes were of the finest quality to be found any place. By actual count there was less than one potato under two inches in diameter in every six feet of a row as the potatoes lay on the ground.

Mr. Stevenson saves his own seed each year and is very particular in selecting his seed, even to the extent of selecting from plants that have shown themselves resistant to blight.

Hundreds Charged With Murder.

Tokio, Oct. 24.—More than 250 persons accused of murdering 400 Koreans and 60 Japanese during the two days of the earthquake terror are being arraigned one after another. Many have been held in jail since their arrest during and immediately following the disaster. Hysteria was widespread following the quake and mobs milling through the streets killed many Koreans and Japanese Socialists.

Police Chief Quits.

Mt. Vernon, O., Oct. 24.—Chief of Police P. J. Parker has tendered his resignation to Mayor Harvie Keigley, effective Nov. 1. Chief Parker is the Democratic candidate for mayor, opposing Mayor Keigley, Republican.

Absurd Old English Law.

Under the English common law no one has a right to bathe in the sea. This was decided by the courts a hundred years ago, and an attack on the decision at the beginning of this century failed to upset it, the higher court deciding that in the strict legal sense one could fish in the sea but could not bathe in it.

Save Telegraph Poles.

Of 1,558 telegraph poles in the Montgomery-New Orleans line, which were pressure-treated with a light creosote oil, 1,040 poles were still sound after 16 years, says the American Forestry Magazine. In 91 per cent of the cases of decay, the fungi had entered the wood through checks and shakes.

Pressed His Suit.

When the fine old mansion of Chatham, on the Rappahannock, was sold a few years ago, a young teacher said to her sewing school in the parish house of St. George, "You are all Fredericksburg children, and ought to know something of its history, but I do not suppose any one of you knows a thing about Chatham."

To her surprise a little girl piped up: "Yes, I do, Miss Clara; papa read it aloud from the paper."

"Then tell the others, Sally."

"At Chatham General Lee had his coat ironed," answered Sally triumphantly.

The teacher was perplexed until she found in the daily paper the phrase: "It was at Chatham that Gen. Robert E. Lee pressed his suit with the lovely Miss Custis."

Winter Rye Grown in All Parts of CountryIts Production Increased in Last Few Years.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Winter rye is the hardiest of all cereals. It can be grown in all parts of the country, says the United States Department of Agriculture, but is most profitable in the northern and eastern states. Its production in the United States has increased rapidly during the past few years, due chiefly to a heavy foreign demand, high-priced labor, low yields of wheat, and the development of improved varieties of rye. It is grown largely as a cash grain crop in the western half of the country, but is used also for pasture, as a green-manure or nurse crop and to smother weeds.

The ordinary time for sowing winter rye in the northern part of North Dakota and Minnesota is about September 1, with later dates in sections south of this. Many farmers will find it profitable to sow winter rye yet this fall, using grain stubble, corn ground, fall-plowed land, or summer fallow, if climatic conditions permit, the department believes. Sowing on grain stubble is often the most profitable because of the cheaper cost of production. The grain should be sown with a drill at the rate of four to six pecks per acre.

In the important rye-producing western states the average acre value of the rye crop is somewhat less than that of wheat. While the yields of rye usually are higher than those of wheat, the price is much less, being largely determined by the foreign markets which use most of our crop. At low prices rye cannot be grown for grain at a profit except under good management and in favored localities, the Department of Agriculture says. While rye makes good hay, green manure, pasture, or a nurse crop for legumes, it is not a suitable concentrated feed for live stock unless mixed with other grains. It is too heavy and sticky and is not very palatable feeding tests show. When fed in mixtures rye has a feeding value lower than corn, but nearly equal to that of barley.

Keeping Extra Team in Slack Seasons Is Costly

Did you ever stop to figure out just how much it was costing you to keep an extra team on hand in slack seasons, or to have them eating off the farm when they were idle during the winter months. The cost of keeping a horse one year in 1921 averaged about $100, according to figures made up by the Department of Agriculture. Feed and bedding made up about 60 per cent of this figure, not forgetting to figure what the pasture was worth that the horses used.

With this in mind, it is not only easier to see that a farmer can estimate pretty closely whether it is worth something to keep an extra team that is idle most of the time, or to raise colts and dispose of the older horses every year or two. There are a good many progressive farmers who have found that it pays to raise a couple of colts each year, to make the mare pay a little of her cost back. Then they are in position to sell off an extra horse or two if they find there is no real need for keeping him during the slack season.

Hogs Take First PlaceAmong Ohio Live Stock

Hogs and sheep have changed places in the farming scheme of Ohio since 1880. Then, the census showed more than 3,000,000 sheep and 2,000,000 hogs. Now it shows something over 3,000,000 hogs and 2,000,000 sheep.

All other forms of live stock have increased during the same 60-year period, although since 1900 horses and mules show a net decrease. The equine population of Ohio in 1920 is reported in the census as 842,818. Poultry shows the greatest increases in numbers, from 8,000,000 to 13,000,000 between 1880 and 1890, and then steadily about 2,000,000 each decade to the present total of 20,232,857.

More Alfalfa, Less Corn,Slogan of Many Farmers

"More alfalfa and less corn" is the slogan of many farmers right now. Help is getting scarcer, corn is beset with numerous ills, and soils are becoming more difficult to handle. Alfalfa builds up soil, instead of wearing it out, and in all dairy districts an acre of alfalfa is worth three times as much as an acre of corn. Ten tons of corn silage contains about 280 pounds digestible protein, while an acre of alfalfa making four tons of hay would contain 832 pounds of protein. One acre of alfalfa making four tons is worth right now about $100. One acre of corn making 50 bushels is worth now about $35.

Cabbage and Turnips DoWell in Pit Storage

If the cellar space is limited, cabbage and turnips can be well-cared for by pit storing. Select a high spot where the water drains off quickly. Dig a trench three feet wide and two feet deep. Floor with boards. Put in the vegetables and then lay on a tight covering of straw. Put boards over this, providing a small opening at the top for ventilation. Cover with eight to twelve inches of dirt. Apples may be kept in the same way. There is seldom any loss from such a pit.

HER EXILE

By JANE JORDAN

(© 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)

SHE came among them in strange reticence; tactfully aimed questions met with no success. There was a kind of haughtiness about the new resident which forbade intimacy. Later it was the exacting townsfolk who encouraged the coldness. Mrs. Gay was not desirable, they decided. True, her frocks in their modish good taste were superior, and the bungalow she had taken the finest in town.

There was craning of necks on Sunday when the remote neighbor attended service at the beautiful stone church, whose ancient date was registered on the doorpost. The organ was the pride of all. It was the gift of a poor great musician who had come from Plainville in his boyhood.

Rupert Rolf had repeatedly promised to return to his old home town to give an exhibition of his skill. The promise had been unrealized.

One day printed placards announced that the musician was to arrive that week in Plainville; the following Sabbath he would play upon the gift organ in the beautiful church.

The placard in the store window seemed to scream at her with its red letters—Rupert Rolf! Rupert Rolf! And next Sabbath he was to play at the church she attended. Well, might she not still attend?

"Good-by," said the little girl; "my mamma would not want me to stop. Oh, Mrs. Gay, your eyes are wet."

Mrs. Gay laughed shakily. "Why, so they are," she said.

She wore a dark dress the day of Rupert Rolf's church recital. She went early to take her seat in the gallery, and sat palpitating throughout the preliminary opening of the service.

The minister explained that he was waiting, with little hope, the appearance of Rupert Rolf. The musician had not arrived in the town as expected, detained by engagements, but he had sent a letter, assuring his presence if possible, at the morning service.

The allotted time of waiting passed. The minister looked, smiling, over his people. "Our usual organist is out of town," he said. "I wonder if some one will not volunteer to play for us this morning? Please," he begged—and paused. There was no response; again the request was given.

"This is an unusual circumstance," the minister explained, troubled. "Will not some one kindly help in this manner?"

Again no response. Some one arose in the gallery—signified her willingness.

The audience could not see the volunteer organist who went swiftly to take her place before the keys. They saw a dark-clothed back, an enveloping small hat.

The music poured forth. It was an offertory. This was a musician indeed who played for them; untrained ears recognized the sympathetic skill, the beautiful rendering of a great composition.

She stood a moment, finding her way—the volunteer organist was the disapproved Mrs. Gay. Her face shone white and sweet beneath the drooping brim of the prim black hat—then she was seated beyond their sight. The minister came down the pulpit stair hurriedly afterward that he might not miss her, to extend his thanks. Many lingered, looking back curiously. A man arose in the rear of the building—a distinguished-looking blonde man. He, too, pressed hurriedly forward until he stood with the minister, and the one who had come to his assistance. But the man's hand went out first to the woman—"Gay," he murmured chokily; "Gay!"

The little woman smiled; a smile which set her blue eyes all at once ashine. "Rupert!" she answered him; the minister waited. Suddenly his hand went out to the man, "Rupert Rolf," cried Reverend Roberts. "Here and I did not see you."

"I arrived very late," the musician replied. "My substitute was already at her post filling acceptably my place." He whirled about. "Mr. Roberts," said Rupert Rolf, "let me present to you—my wife."

The minister hesitated—"Mrs. Gay." "Gay," said the musician, "is my wife's given name. To you I may as well now explain. My wife and I were rival musicians. We met abroad, upon a musical tour. After our marriage we traveled together giving recitals. I had lived but for my music before I met her. You know, my life was so ordered. And—in an artist's madness of pride—I found myself humiliated one night, the very night I had so wished to excel—by my wife's superior performance. I and my loud attempt was lost, in her glory; can you understand a man's bitter jealousy? Now—I am overwhelmed at that madness. I know not what reproaches I brought to my wife—I know that next day she left me secretly, and my most absorbing effort to find her was unavailing. In order to place me first in the musical world which she thought my all—she had effaced herself completely. And—the musician's eyes, filled with remorseful tears, met those of his wife—and broke my heart," he finished.

She met the townspeople gracefully, the gifted wife of the famous musician.

"Such a charming pair!" the residents said. "No doubt it was Mr. Rolf's wish that his wife remain unknown among us until he himself might present her."

BEASTS MENACE LIFE IN AFRICA

Former German Territory Over-run With Lions—Missionaries Clash.

London.—All is not joy in the life of British officials in Tanganyika territory, formerly German East Africa. Lions, leopards and elephants menace the population; missionary jealousy bewilders the pagan natives, and witchcraft, practiced by the wild Wapare of the Moshi district, causes many helpless infants to be put to death annually.

Aspects of life in this new British territory are described in the 1922 report of the country. Big game multiplied rapidly in Tanganyika during the war. Lions frequently satisfy their taste for human flesh at the expense of life. Their boldness is incredible, and whole villages have been terrorized by their presence. In the first half of the year rewards were paid for the destruction of 300 lions and 800 leopards. In Tabora district alone 67 people were killed by lions.

Natives Are Helpless.
Elephants do great damage to crops, often ruining a whole plantation in a single night, or, entering the villages, they strip the roofs of grain stores and scatter or consume the contents. The native too often assumes a fatalistic attitude in the presence of disaster, and becomes unwilling of unable to help himself.

In Tanganyika witchcraft has as fatal effects on infants as wild beasts have on adult natives. To the influence of the medicine men, says the report, may be attributed the barbarous practice of infanticide which prevails among the Wapare in the Moshi district. Children, born with some abnormality, or the offspring of parents who have failed to undergo initiation into certain tribal ceremonies, are done to death by deliberate starvation and neglect, or by exposure to the unhealthy climate of the low country. Often parents would not of their own accord abandon such children, and in many cases have preferred to give them away to strangers.

Rivalry Among Missionaries.
When the elders of the tribe were addressed on this matter, there was a decided tendency to recognize its evils and to adopt more enlightened ideas, but a few were against the abolition of the custom on the ground that the destruction of the tribes certainly would follow. According to these sages, life is altogether too precarious, and the number of acts or omissions which they can cite as being fatal is amazing; even to plant a tree was pronounced to be equivalent to dooming one's self to death.

Another difficulty confronting British administrators in the territory is that of rivalry among missionaries. "It is greatly to be regretted that a spirit of jealous rivalry has manifested itself in certain districts between Christian missions of different denominations," the report declares. "It arises from a very natural and sincere belief in the superiority of that branch of the common faith which it is their pride and their duty to preach to the heathen, but it has often resulted in an undignified competition to extend the scope of the mission beyond limits which a proper degree of influence and control would demand, and in attempts to set up schools in juxtaposition of those of another denomination. This open display to the pagan of religious differences cannot but react to the damage of the Christian faith."

Natives Bewildered.
"Christian missionaries, by offering one doctrine here, another close by, and still another a few miles away, must achieve little more than the complete bewilderment of the pagan native, and it would be well if Christian societies would recognize that the principle of spheres of influence is ultimately to the clear advantage of Christianity as a whole, no less than to that of pagan populations."

Sample Houses Sent to Prospective Home Buyers

London.—Sending little "sample" houses to home builders, is the plan of salesmanship being used by some London architects. These models are complete in every detail and are designed to inspire pride of ownership in the person to whom they are mailed. Facing a housing shortage, rivaling that of any American metropolis, many residents of London have bought home sites in the city's suburbs and are confronted with the problem of selecting the type of home to be built. To help them, the architects have started the new industry of building models that are mailed to possible buyers.

Bride Deserted at Church Wins Divorce

Muncie, Ind.—Asserting that her husband deserted her at the church where they were married and forced her to spend her "honeymoon" alone, Mrs. Leone Lundberg, of this city, has obtained a divorce. Mrs. Lundberg has not seen her husband since he bundled her into a cab and sent her home a few minutes after they were married, she said.

FORBES ACCUSED IN REPORT

Alleged to Have "Winked At"
Corrupt Practices.

READ INTO INQUIRY'S RECORD

Charges Contained in a Report Made to Major General O'Ryan by Judge A. E. Graupner, Chairman of Rehabilitation Committee of the American Legion at San Francisco. Essence of Report.

Washington, Oct. 24.—The implication that Colonel Charles R. Forbes, former director of the veterans' bureau, had "participated in" or "winked at" corrupt practices in connection with the veterans' bureau tuberculosis hospital site near Livermore, Cal., was read into the record of the senate investigation of the bureau by Major General John O'Ryan, counsel for the committee conducting the inquiry.

It was contained in a report made to O'Ryan by Judge A. E. Graupner, chairman of the rehabilitation committee of the American Legion at San Francisco. The report says:

"On June 28, 1922, Colonel Forbes was in San Francisco stopping at the Fairmont hotel. At that time the American Legion was satisfied that the transactions relating to the Livermore hospital were shady.

"John R. Quinn, the commander of the American Legion, and A. E. Graupner, the district chairman of the rehabilitation committee, the secretary of the committee and the director of publicity of the committee of the legion called upon Director Forbes in his room in order to discuss the matter.

"At that time charges were made directly to Colonel Forbes that the purchase of the property was surrounded by graft; that the plans for the hospital were such as to excite suspicion and that the circumstances surrounding the open cultivation of the farm crop on the Livermore site were such as to lead the American Legion to believe that Colonel Forbes was participating in or openly winking at the corrupt transaction.

"At that time Director Forbes made no denial of any of the allegations made to him by the American Legion, and his whole justification seemed to be that as long as the property had been acquired and was suited to the purpose of a tubercular hospital, it was no concern of the American Legion what was paid for the property or how the money was disposed of.

"From that time on the matter was subject to suspicion, and on March 1 charges were placed in the hands of Brigadier General Sawyer in Washington. The matter was also called to the attention of Director Hines upon his resuming office.

The report also dealt with the alleged activities of Matthew O'Brien, a San Francisco architect, who appeared in Washington with political endorsements for his employment. Charles Stratton, chief designer of the construction division of the bureau, testified that O'Brien was introduced to him by Forbes, who stated he had employed O'Brien to prepare plans for a tuberculosis hospital to be built on the Livermore site. O'Brien was furnished a set of standard plans, and later came back with a set of drawings which Stratton characterized as "very poorly executed." O'Brien, Stratton testified, received $64,000 for these plans, which were never used.

FRENCH SUPPORT SOUGHT

Promoters of Rhine Republic Submit Impossible Proposals.

Paris, Oct. 24.—Promoters of the Rhinish republic, in exchange for French support, have agreed to pay 50 per cent of the reparations due from Germany; to force Germany to pay the remainder under threat of imposing an impossible tax on coal and Ruhr industries destined for the German interior; to accord France favored nation treatment, and to accomplish a union of Ruhr coke with French iron interests.

When the Rhine republic is firmly established France will bring the occupation troops home, permitting the Rhineland to maintain fortification of the German frontier with a large military establishment which will otherwise be maintained by the French.

Keen observers here believe the policy is doomed to rapid failure, because even if the republic wins with the passive aid of France, the moment the French army leaves the whole structure of the republic will fall like a house of cards. Only one-fifth of the population favor separation.

Klan in the Navy.

Washington, Oct. 24.—Secretary Denby has begun an investigation into the activities of the Ku Klux Klan among the personnel of the navy, it was learned. He has received numerous letters informing him that the Ku Klux has signed up many young sailors, and asking him what he would do about it. To all such inquiries Denby replied that it may be true that the Klan numbers bluejackets among its members, but that until there is some overt act or subversion of government, there is nothing to be done.

ATTACKED WITH CLEAVER

Birmingham's Twentieth Ax Victim Is Woman Storekeeper.

Birmingham, Ala., Oct. 24.—Mrs. Frank Romeo, 65, is dead, following an attack by a negro robber. Her daughter, Mrs. Juliet Vigilante, was injured seriously. The two women were in the small neighborhood store which they conducted when, according to Mrs. Vigilante, a negro entered and attacked them with a cleaver.

Birmingham police have been baffled by a long series of ax crimes. Besides 20 killed, 18 were wounded. Most of the victims have been storekeepers—usually foreigners running small establishments in outlying districts. Four of the killed were women. The crimes have been so frequent that proprietors of small stores have been warned repeatedly by police to lock their doors at sunset.

SIX FOUND DEAD

Oregon Farmer Kills Five Before Ending His Own Life.

Bend, Ore., Oct. 24.—Six persons lost their lives in what is believed to be a murder and suicide plot at Deschutes, near here. The dead are: Ed Chasse, his three young children, a widowed sister, Mrs. Anna Tordes, and her child. Investigation led authorities to the belief that Chasse killed the other members of his household, set the farm house on fire and then shot himself. The bodies of the six were found in the ashes of the house.

WALTON OUT AS GOVERNOR

Indicted By Solons on Two
Articles of Impeachment.

TRAPP NOW CHIEF EXECUTIVE

Score of Additional Articles Remain to Be Passed Upon by the Oklahoma House of Representatives. State Senate Resolves Itself Into a Court of Impeachment—Walton to Start Fight to Retain His Office.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Oct. 24.—Governor J. C. Walton was indicted on two articles of impeachment preferred before the house of representatives and was suspended from office by the senate. Lieutenant Governor M. E. Trapp now is Oklahoma's chief executive.

Only a few minutes elapsed between the governor's indictment on one count and his removal from authority.

Notified of the house's verdict, upon the first charge, the upper branch of the assembly immediately adopted, by a vote of 38 to 1, a resolution declaring that filing of the article "automatically suspends J. C. Walton as governor and the office with its duties and compensations devolves upon the lieutenant governor."

Walton refused to make any comment whatsoever. Trapp was in Sapulpa and was notified quickly of the action by both bodies. While the senate was stripping Walton of executive power the house was voting his impeachment on a second article, the decision being transmitted forthwith to the senate chamber that it might be included in the bill of particulars.

Today the senate was resolved into a court of impeachment by Chief Justice J. T. Johnson of the state supreme court and proceeded immediately upon trial of the charges submitted to it by the house board of managers, who were appointed by Speaker W. D. McBee. Six days will be allowed defendant and prosecutor to prepare for trial.

The impeached governor's friends predict that Walton will commence his fight at once to retain office. He is expected to issue a pardon. Secretary of State Speed will refuse to attest it. The beneficiary will, therefore, swear out a writ of habeas corpus in the criminal court of appeals. The senate's suspension power will be put to the test, but the members contend that the senate ranks even the supreme court and its judicial acts are supreme and final.

Governor Walton was impeached, first, upon a charge of felonious diversion of health department funds for the purpose of paying his private chauffeur's salary of $200 a month. It was sustained without debate by a vote of 80 ayes to 17 nays. The second article alleged violation of the state constitution in preventing assembling and functioning of a legally called grand jury in Oklahoma county by the exercise of military power. The vote was 75 ayes against 23 nays. Twenty additional articles remain to be determined.

HARVEY DECLARES IT'S UP TO EUROPE

America Still Prepared to Participate in Conference.

London, Oct. 24.—The United States government is still prepared to participate in a European conference to fix the amount of German reparations to avert economic disaster.

This message was delivered by Ambassador George Harvey at a farewell banquet given him by the Pilgrims society.

"A year ago it was apparently the universal opinion in Europe that the crux of the settlement lay in the determination of the amount of reparations Germany could really pay. America came to the door of Europe and, lo and behold, the door was closed. The United States was not wanted. What could any self-respecting nation do? The United States went home.

"Conditions on the continent have changed somewhat during the last 11 months, but there is no material difference in the fundamental situation.

DOINGS IN OHIO

Taxis Held Public Utilities.

Columbus, Oct. 24.—Taxicabs were held to be public utilities and their owners were held responsible for acts committed by drivers on any trips made in a company's car at any time by an Ohio supreme court decision. Miss Cosgrove's victory was upheld.

Marion, O., Oct. 24.—Charles B. Orwig died here from self-inflicted bullet wounds. Orwig, a candidate for state treasurer in 1920, shot himself through the head while seated in his automobile near Marion. Despondency over ill health resulting from loss of a leg by a shell explosion during the world war is given as the motive for the act.

Columbus, Oct. 24.—Mrs. Barnabas Vass, East Columbus, is suffering from typhus fever, health officials announced. It is the first typhus case in the history of this city and one of very few ever reported in Ohio. The Vass home has been quarantined. CLASHES OCCUR IN RHINELAND

Separatists Lose Aix la Chapelle, But Take Other Towns.

RED OUTBREAK AT HAMBURG

Communists Storm and Capture Several Dozen Killed and 150 Wounded During the Fighting—Bavaria Demands Removal of Minister Gessler—Developments in Germany.

Berlin, Oct. 24.—The slow disintegration of the German reich, which began through the attempt of Minister of the Reichswehr Gessler and General Von Seeckt to dismiss the Bavarian general, Von Lossow, was characterized by the spread of the separatist movement in some Rhineland sections and by setbacks in other districts.

There were clashes and disorders in a number of cities. Aix-la-Chapelle, earliest citadel of the separatists, was recaptured by loyal Germans, chiefly organized labor, who drove the separatists out of the city. Wiesbaden, however, was taken by the separatists, organized labor immediately answering with a general strike.

Bonn was also taken by the separatists, which was made easy through French orders that the loyal Germans may not use arms against them. Despite this, there was some shooting. Treves is also reported taken.

Fresh fuel was added to the quarrel between Bavaria and Berlin through General Von Lossow sending a wireless to all principal reichswehr garrisons throughout Germany, practically calling on the reichswehr to revolt against the Berlin government, declaring that the place of Germany's national army is behind Bavaria, and not behind Berlin's "Marxistically influenced" government.

Salvos of rifle fire startled citizens of Hamburg. Communist bands stormed and took several outlying police stations of that city. Most of them were retaken by the police. Several dozens of persons have been killed in the fighting and 150 wounded.

The fighting was particularly severe in the suburb of Barnbeck, where the communists threw up barricades in the streets and fought from the housetops. The police, after a loss of five dead and 20 wounded, have the situation in hand. All street traffic has been ordered suspended.

The city council of Berlin has decided to ration bread and will reissue bread cards. The majority of bakeries in Berlin were completely empty by noon, the small supply of bread being quickly sold.

Removal of Otto Gessler as minister of the reichswehr by the national government and a new constitution for Germany—that promises to be the price demanded by Bavaria before she re-enters the family of German states. "We want another constitution, not the Weimar socialistic constitution centralizing all power in the hands of the Berlin government," said Dictator Von Kahr.

BOOTLEG RING ALLEGED

Means, Under Indictment, Demands Congressional Investigation.

New York, Oct. 24.—A congressional investigation of a national bootleg ring headed by two high government officials in Washington is demanded by Gaston B. Means, former department of justice agent, in answer to his federal indictment on liquor charges just disclosed here. Means declares the indictment is the work of the bootleg ring which is trying to discredit him just when he was about to reveal the results of his secret investigation which he says he was commissioned to make by a high government official. Means charges he was forced out of the department of justice service last year by these same officials who are the "brains" of the bootleggers. Four prominent New York lawyers are involved in the ring by Means who says that the ring operated on an immense scale through liquor withdrawal permits secured in Washington without the knowledge of Director Haynes.

Means and Elmer W. J. Jarnecke, a former Chicago egg dealer, are specifically charged with swindling the government out of more than $2,000,000 worth of liquor withdrawal permits, at a profit of $100,000 to themselves.

Auto Driver Killed.
Dayton, O., Oct. 24.—A. Farrell, 28, was instantly killed when his automobile ran into a telephone pole.

DINE WITH COOLIDGE

Republican Leaders and Capitalists Assure Him of Support.

Washington, Oct. 24.—Money magnates and Republican leaders lunched with President Coolidge and afterwards conferred with him at length. While there was no official announcement following the meeting, it is understood to have had these outstanding objects: To assure the president that the old guard in the organization has taken as a foregone conclusion that he has to be the standard-bearer in 1924, and that they are banking on him, and to assure ample finances for his campaign and for the party, with him at the helm.

The president's guests were: John T. Adams, chairman of Republican national committee; Fred W. Upham, treasurer; C. H. Huston, chairman of ways and means committee; former Governor Sproul, Pennsylvania; E. T. Stotesbury, Philadelphia; W. R. Wrigley, Chicago; James H. Stanley, Denver, and Frank Stearns, Boston.

Incidental matters, such as the city to be favored with the next national convention, were discussed. Chicago is making the usual determined effort to secure the gathering, with Denver as the principal contender, it was stated.

Lloyd George at Cleveland.

Cleveland, Oct. 24.—In two addresses delivered here David Lloyd George, Britain's war premier, repeated his plea for American aid in the rehabilitation of Europe. The first address was delivered at a chamber of commerce luncheon, where the former premier was introduced by former Secretary of War Baker. Mayor Kohler made the formal address of welcome. At the other meeting, held in the open air at the site of the public library now under construction, Lloyd George had his largest American audience. It is estimated that fully 100,000 persons heard the address.

REFUSES TO TESTIFY

Judge Lindsey Alleges Illegal Operations on Part of Physicians.

Denver, Oct. 24.—Judge Ben D. Lindsey, famous juvenile court judge, summoned to appear before the grand jury to explain his statement that "illegal operations by physicians had cut Denver's birth rate in two," declared in an open letter to the grand jury that he would go to jail before he would reveal any information given him in confidence by high school girls and other young women. "I have every respect for the purpose of the grand jury in summoning me to testify as to what I know about illegal operations," Judge Lindsey said. "I believe there were 1,000 such operations in Denver last year. But I shall refuse to tell the grand jury anything that has come to me in hundreds of confidences received from women and girls who come to this office for help."

Mrs. Catherine Bristol of Baltimore was granted a new trial in her $150,000 damage suit against John Kelly of Atlanta, Ga., whom she charges furnished her poisoned liquor that resulted in partial loss of her eyesight.

Craze for Things of Spanish Style

Shawl Vogue Is Increasing Among American Women Seeking Colors.

A well-known artist who is a keen observer of the trend of the times has expressed the opinion that women are becoming color-blind, says a fashion writer in the New York Times. He believes they are indulging in such extravagance of color in their dress and surroundings that their eyes will lose their appreciation of values and after a time will no longer be able to tell one color from another. With true masculine cynicism, this painter who sees no inconsistency in blue grass, green skies, and pink snow on canvas, comments thus regarding the fashionable woman of today and her wardrobe.

It is undoubtedly a season of riotous color. We have been coming to it rather casually, but the craze for the Egyptian type started the correspondingly lavish use of dyes, and now there appears in the latest styles only enough of black, white and the quieter tones to emphasize the intensity of the hues in the new gowns, wraps and millinery and even in the jewelry.

While the other side of the world is engulfed in blackest night of mourning, we, on two shores of the Atlantic, are reveling in the gayest, the most bizarre, and the costliest, fairly incited by the wealth of it all. The windows of the big shops are ablaze with fabrics fit to adorn a Sheba or a Solomon. The best talent of European attellers has been engaged in creating for present-day wear such combinations and high lights in the weave and sheen of dress goods as make the leaders of fashion of earlier days look like doves. The designs are painted with a large brush, and the colors are an education in art.

The latest phase of this delirium is inspired by Spain, and there is a craze for things Spanish. The Spanish shawl has always been used for picture purposes, for fancy costumes, in house decoration and on the stage. But only lately have smart women worn it as a practical wrap, as they wear the newest and most stereotyped French cape or coat.

For two years past this vogue has been increasing. American women acquiring very slowly a taste for the things of Latin Europe. King Tut led us so far into the land of symbols, hitherto strange to us, that the sunniness of Spanish color and pattern is graceful, and suddenly the whole Spanish scheme of costuming is upon us.

Spanish Shawl of Old. The traditional Spanish shawl, that with which we are most familiar, Carmen's cloak of witchery, is one of many-colored flowers embroidered on a white ground, to be wrapped about the figure in a way made famous by the cigarette girl of Bizet's opera. But Carmen probably never dreamed of its possibilities in the hands of the modistes of the Twentieth century.

The many-colored shawl is still shown, the designs exaggerated until roses are embroidered the size of dinner plates. Made to harmonize with modern dress, the shawls are of one or two colors, the number and variety fairly bewildering. In black and white, yellow and white, royal purple and white, in raisin upon mayne, heliotrope upon gendarme blue, orange upon flame color, scarlet upon petunia, and so on through the possible blendings. Some of them are enchanting, and now, the style having taken hold, the shawls are finding eager purchasers.

Designers of fashions find many charming adaptations of the Spanish shawl. As an evening wrap over a gown of black velvet it has an assured vogue. Over black or ivory satin nothing could be more stunning. In a day when society dashes madly from one diversion to another, women find the shawl a joy because it can be so easily and so quickly thrown on.

The fringe on the shawls is now made extremely long, trailing the carpet of the smart restaurants, where it is seen in all its glory. In a handsome model an all-white shawl is draped gracefully over a white satin gown severely made. Black and gray over orange, and white over jade green are some of the other combinations evolved as imagination soars. For day wear the shawl is a comfort to be drawn over the shoulders in the cool air. It makes a delightful tea gown, with foundation of soft satin or chiffon, and a luxury as a dressing gown. However used, the Spanish shawl is loved for itself, its beauty and its softness. No metallic note is found in it.

Vogue for Spanish Lace. Like so many novelties that find their way to us from afar, this feature of the dress of a south European country is accepted without question as being Spanish. The women of Spain wear the shawl, but it is embroidered by Chinese and Filipinos. In fact, the Spaniards speak of it as the Manton Manila, and surely none but Oriental wizards with the needle could create those wonders that look as if they had never been touched by human hands.

Spanish lace has been more easily brought into vogue over here and for several reasons has been growing in popularity. Some lovely gowns made entirely of the lace are shown by representative houses, usually in black. Its silky softness is much liked, and the addition of a bit of jet, a colored girdle, a garniture of flowers, gives chic to many of them. The introduction of the lace in deep flounces, on the skirt, for sleeves, collars, berthas, capes and scarfs, or as a part of the gown itself, is shown in many graceful models.

One of the most attractive designs seen this season from a New York couturiere is a dancing frock of ivory Spanish lace made over a slip of peach-colored satin. It was built in the style of the sixties, with full skirt of ankle length, snug bodice and a wide ruffle of the lace around the decollete neck. A trailing spray of flowers at one side finished a slender girdle of silver cord. A drop skirt of pale rose chiffon, upon which was sewn a deep band of silver lace showing through the outer skirt, made a most enchanting costume.

Spanish lace is now dyed in a great variety of delicate shades for evening gowns, and in one respect is economical, because so little trimming is required. That anything so fanciful in dress can endure is unlikely, but for the time Spain and things Spanish are very much in the limelight.

With Spanish shawls and gowns of Spanish lace come irresistibly the fan, the comb and other accessories. Fans are exceedingly smart. They are of lace with sticks of amber, shell, ivory or mother of pearl, some studded with brilliants. Feather fans are the most fashionable. They are shown in gorgeous plumes and novelty feathers, and are regarded as the quintessence of elegance.

One part of a Spanish woman's dress is likely not to be adopted by her American sisters; that is the mantilla. Maturity of thought and beauty comes so early under the skies of Spain, that the mantilla is accepted. But one cannot fancy a Spanish mantilla with bobbed or plastered locks and the general flapper makeup.

Smaller Things Get Attention. In a season so ornate and colorful as the present, with flowers, wraps and furs worth a king's ransom being worn, the smaller things of the toilet quite logically follow the line. Apropos Spanish shawls and gowns and lace, the most bewitching slippers to be worn with lace dance frocks are shown in satin and metal brocades. They are to be had in dainty shades in many different styles, with expensive buckles or ornaments of rhinestones, or rosettes of lace. The fancy sandals of the summer are repeated in these shoes with numerous variations.

Buckles are both large and small. Ribbon bows, fan-shaped ornaments and tiny jeweled buttons are among the popular trimmings for setting up an evening shoe, and the heel must be French or Spanish, a heel de luxe on a slipper of white and silver brocade being studded with rhinestones. The stockings are more sheer and fancy than ever before. Medallions of chantilly are let into the instep of black or white silk stockings, and some exceptionally dainty lace patterns extend from the vamp to the boot top. One hears less now of the French or the Cuban heel. It must be the Spanish heel, particularly on shoes for afternoon, which differ little except in color from evening slippers.

GOOD ADVICE.

All that Circleville needs to start an industrial revival is for its citizens to forget self and join hands in a whole hearted movement in bolstering up industry.

If each person will forget petty personal jealousy, stop knocking and begin to boost in an effective manner the city can easily double its population in five years at the same time doubling the value of every foot of property in the city. Boost, don't knock.

Bells Worn by Priests.
Innumerable and interesting are the traditions surrounding bells. Bells, or substitutes thereof, have ever played an important part in religious ceremonies. In the books of Exodus and Ecclesiastes the ornaments of the high priest's ephod include bells, so that "their sound might be heard whenever he goeth in or cometh out of the sanctuary." Their use in the eastern church obtains even to this day, bells being found as they were of old on the fringe of priestly garments.

REINDEERS GLUT MARKET; U. S. TO SOLVE PROBLEM

Animals Have Multiplied Too Rapidly in Alaska.

Seattle, Wash.—Confronted with the problem of having so many reindeer he does not know what to do with them, Uncle Sam, through his division of education in Alaska, is reorganizing the service. W. L. Lopp, superintendent of education of the natives in northern Alaska, has been ordered to remove his office at once to Anchorage.

The reindeer service in the past year has completely outgrown its organization, the animals having multiplied so rapidly they number in excess of 800,000. During this season 80,000 calves were born.

Most of the natives are facing the difficulty of possessing herds so large they cannot handle them and some plan must be devised for marketing the animals.

The big herds of the government have increased rapidly and the fixing of boundaries of ranges for the reindeer must be done at once. At present the innumerable herds of reindeer are roaming the public domain.

Native herders who started out five or six years ago with two dozen reindeer have become owners of 1,000 to 5,000. From 11 individual herds in 1918 there has been an increase to 109 herds in August this year.

The discovery of large areas of reindeer moss on the northern slopes of Mount McKinley resulted in a herd of 1,800 reindeer being driven there for pasturage. This summer this herd nearly doubled.

At this time of year caribou pass the interior settlements on their southward trend to winter quarters, and settlers lay in their winter's supply of meat free of cost. Reindeer cannot hope to become a meat product until the caribou cease to pass human habitations.

During this season from 6,000 to 10,000 frozen reindeer carcasses passed through here en route to New York, distributing point for Nome reindeer shippers. Alaska's tundras and moss regions are capable of feeding 1,000,000 reindeer.

Retrieves Fortune in Silver From Garbage

Los Angeles, Cal.—A fortune is lost every year in the knives, forks and spoons which accidentally go into the garbage cans in Los Angeles, according to a number of cafe and restaurant owners, who are the principal sufferers.

One restaurant reported a loss of nearly $40,000 in silverware last year. Some of this was carried away by patrons, but most of it was sent to the hog farms near here by way of the garbage can.

Private families are not so heedless of their silverware, it is said, but public eating houses suffer heavy losses because of the carelessness of employees.

A man has entered the business of recovering the lost silverware from the farms, and knives, forks and spoons bearing the names of the cafes owning them are returned at a small cost.

Ant-Eating Bear Trapped in Brazil

Above is shown Antonio Bergelt, a hunter for C. Bruce Chapman, F. Z. S., with an ant-eating bear that he trapped in Brazil. It is now at the zoo at London. This animal and its companion are the first species to be seen for forty years. They live on ants, which they scoop up with their long bills.

Thrashed Ex-Kaiser When He Was a Youth

London.—The death occurred here recently of Alfred Russell Price, and passed almost unheeded, whereas it was worthy of special notice, for he succeeded in accomplishing what thousands of Americans have itched to do, but could not. He gave the boy, who later became German emperor, a good, sound thrashing.

It happened years ago when Wilhelm was the crown prince and was visiting Iffracombe, an English seaside resort, with his tutor. Wilhelm, in a playful, destructive mood, began to throw stones at some bathing machines belonging to Mr. Price's father. He was told to stop, but took exception to this infringement of his regal rights. Young Price took off his coat and began to belabor the royal youth so successfully that he had administered a black eye and several cuts and bruises before the tutor succeeded in calling off hostilities.

Invention of Electric Light.

The credit for the basic discovery of the electric light is probably due to Sir Humphry Davy, who in 1810 observed the electric arc and produced incandescence of a fine platinum wire in connection with his experiments with a 2,000-cell battery. In 1862 an arc lamp was installed in the light-house at Dungeness, in 1879 the Edison incandescent lamp was exhibited, and in 1882 the Pearl street Edison station in New York was put in service.

RIVER IS 2,000 MILES LONG

Alexander the Great Bridged the Indus in India and Led His Army Into the Punjab.

The Indus is one of the three great rivers of northern India. It has its source in the glaciers of the mountain region of the north, and after flowing across the hill country, inhabited by the fanatical tribes, of which Kipling wrote, it comes out upon the plains of India, which it crosses, flowing to the southwest, and emptying into the Arabian sea a little south of the frontier of Baluchistan. The distance in a straight line from source to mouth is 1,500 miles, but if the curves of the river be taken into account, the river has a length of 2,000 miles.

The Indus enters the sea through several mouths, thereby forming a large delta, and on the extreme western end of this delta stands the port of Karachi, the capital of the Province of Sind and the gateway for the trade of the Punjab and a large part of central India. The city has a population of about 125,000. It has a large export trade in wheat, oilseeds, cotton, wool and hides. It contains extensive iron works and other manufacturing. Karachi is 500 miles by sea from Bombay.

It will be remembered that when Alexander the Great, the Macedonian conqueror, invaded northern India, he came to the River Indus, bridged it, and crossing in the year 326 B. C., led his army into the Punjab. His victorious career continued for a time, but finally his troops refused to advance further, and Alexander was compelled to turn back. He died on the homeward march.

Princess Led Stormy Life.

Princess Tarrakanoff was the daughter of Empress Elizabeth of Russia and Alexis Rozoumoffski, whom the empress had secretly married. She was carried away at the age of twelve by Prince Radzivil and concealed in a convent in Rome. This step was taken by the dissatisfied noble to curb the ambition of Catherine, who then ruled. But it failed, and her favorite, Alexis Orloff, himself pretending great discontent against the government of Catherine, prevailed upon the princess, in the absence of Radzivil, to marry him, return to Russia and incite a new insurrection. The young and unsuspecting princess had no sooner placed herself in his power than she was seized while on board a ship in the bay of Leghorn. She was bound in chains and carried to St. Petersburg. In December, 1777, a violent rising of the Neva suddenly forced the waters into her prison cell and she was drowned before assistance could reach her.

U. S. TRAINING SCHOOLS FOR WHITE GIRLS PLANNED

Construction on Institution to Start in Maryland.

Washington.—A new national training school for girls is to be established on the Ludlow farm, Prince George's county, Md., in the immediate future, it was learned following the recording of the sale of the Ludlow farm site to the government by Oliver E. Pagan. Construction of living quarters for the girls will be started immediately, it was said, and the Pagan home will be converted into an administration building and a home for the teachers.

The sale was made to the Department of Justice, under which the institution is conducted, for $25,000. The estate comprises ten acres and accommodations will be provided for 150 white girls.

The present training school was reported last year to be inadequate, in a survey of social welfare institutions in the district, made by Dr. Hastings H. Hart, director in the department of child helping of the Russell Sage foundation. An appropriation of $52,000 was made by congress toward the erection of a new school for white girls, with the expectation that the present school would be used for colored girls.

The institution is maintained jointly by the district and the federal governments, girls being committed there by both the District and the United States courts.

It has not been decided, however, whether the present school will be used for colored girls, or whether the grounds and buildings will be sold and the proceeds used to build new modern cottage schools, for both white and colored girls.

The population of the national training school for girls now averages between 100 and 110, although the buildings are designed to accommodate 121.

Negotiations for the purchase of the Ludlow farm were completed when the sale was recorded in the Marlboro court house. The farm lies on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, between Amundale and Muirkirk, and adjoins the government experimental farm in Prince George's county.

Chemical Formula Puts Pep in German Workers

Baltimore.—Both man and beast will be able to work very much harder than they do now and will get fat on it if a report from Germany proves to be true.

This secret of tremendously increasing working power without fatigue is said to lie in a chemical formula developed by Prof. Gustaf Embden of Frankfurt university. Sodium dihydrogen phosphate is said to have been given to German troops in the form of a drink during the war under conditions arranged by Doctor Embden, and the reports are that it enabled them to march much farther than their comrades who had not been given the drink, and without fatigue. Since the war it is said to have been given to coal miners with like results and experiments have been conducted on oxen.

Local physicians have not yet learned the detailed results of the experiments. Some say that continued use of the salt has resulted in irritation of the digestive tracts dangerous to health.

Boy and Girl Saved From Wrecked Motorboat

Brookville, Ont.—Three young men and three young women of Watertown and Alexandria Bay, N. Y., stood for 40 minutes waist deep in the heavy St. Lawrence river, after their motor boat had been wrecked, while two passing steamboats failed to answer their distress signals. They were rescued eventually by another motor boat.

They were Gladys McHenry, Lulu Touthette and Ruth Campbell of Watertown, and Roland Holloway, Early Bailey and Newton Russell of Alexandria Bay. The party was motor-boating from Brookville to Alexandria Bay when their craft struck a submerged shoal and settled. By clinging to the half-sunken boat in the swift waters and holding to the meager footing afforded by the shoal all six managed to hold on until assistance arrived.

New Glider Record Made by Darmstadt Aviator

Gersfeld, Germany.—A glider record was established here by the Darmstadt aviator, Botsch, who covered a distance of 19 kilometers in a flight of one hour, attaining an altitude of 254 meters.

Martens, one of the last year's prize winners in the glider competition, covered 14 kilometers in a one-hour flight.

Weds Fiance's Brother.

Empire, O.—When the time came for the ceremony which was to make Albert Gano and Miss Julia Mahalko, of this city, man and wife, Albert had disappeared. A wait followed. Then Albert's brother Michael, whispered to the bride-to-be, she nodded assent, and five minutes later she was Michael's wife.

Swell Resorts Spoil Bride.

"When I go on my honeymoon," remarked the cynical Mr. Schoepman, who in the next breath is just as likely as not to tell you that he'll never get married, says the New York Sun and Globe, "I'm going to take my blushing bride to a third-rate hostelry at a place where the climate is intolerable and the service and food poor. So many bridegrooms make the mistake of taking their fair ones to favored resorts and putting up at the best hotels. The result is that the brides have something they can throw in friend husband's face when they get down to earth and a six-room cottage for life.

"I'll select a place so undesirable that the things I'll be able to provide for Mrs. S., subsequently will be magnificent by comparison."

Mesopotamia's Old Glories.

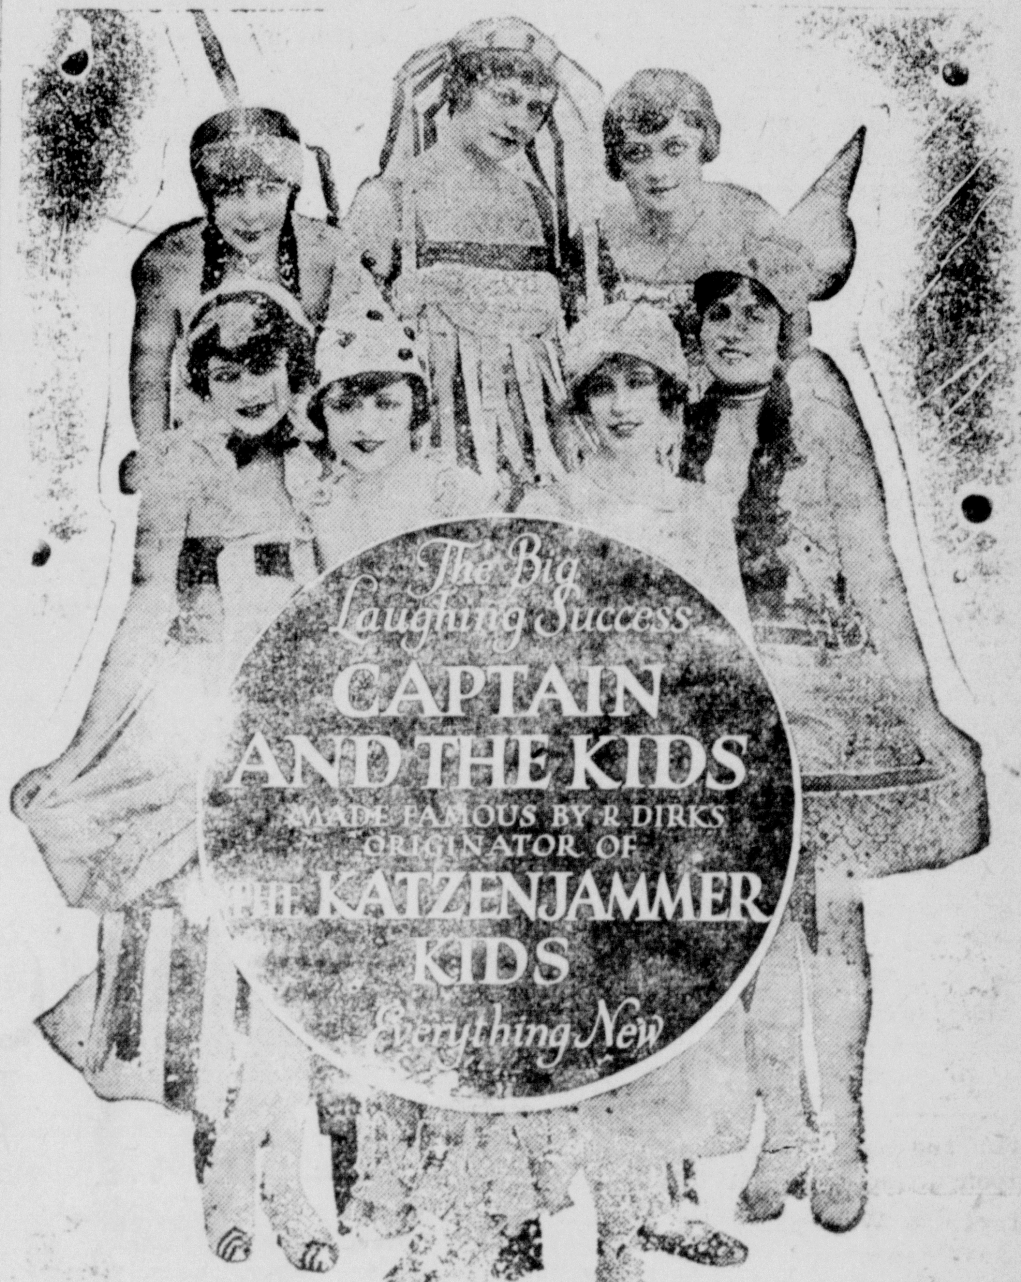

Nebuchadnezzar's vast irrigation system, which once watered all Babylonia, can still be easily traced for miles about Bagdad. One giant canal, the Narawan, runs parallel with the Tigris for nearly 300 miles; it is 350 feet wide, and all about it the takeoff and laterals may still be identified. Herodotus said he found a "forest of verdure from end to end" when he visited Mesopotamia.—National Geographic Society Bulletin.

Miss Hilda Rigby Addressed the Chamber of Commerce Tuesday.

One Hundred and Fifty Disabled Soldiers in Pickaway County—Organization Will Help Boys Get What is Due—Collected $8,000,000 for Japanese.

Miss Hilda Rigby, special field representative from Washington D. C., of the Red Cross, who is in charge of the Pickaway county branch, gave an outline of the work and what she has accomplished since coming here.

The talk was made before the chamber of commerce Tuesday evening and was most interesting. There are 150 disabled soldiers of the late war in this county alone and since establishing the branch here a number of these claims have been examined and papers sent in are now receiving attention and care, and in some cases they are receiving a monthly pension from the government.

So far $5000 has been secured in back pay and other relief. The claims are carefully scrutinized by the government and must be exact in every case. A false affidavit or misstatement often cancels the claim, so one must be very particular. Every soldier, who has a disability incurred while in the service of his country, is entitled to attention and all he needs to do is to see Miss Rigby at the chamber of commerce rooms at the Masonic temple and blanks will be made out and his claim sent in free of charge.

Miss Rigby also spoke of her work in organizing a Junior Red Cross in the schools for peace time work. This field has barely been touched, owing to the fact of the enormous amount of work required in getting out war claims of the disabled soldiers, but as soon as this work slackens up more attention will be given to other branches of Red Cross work.

The Red Cross collected eight million dollars for the Japanese relief at a cost of eleven thousand dollars. This expense was met by the Red Cross alone and the Japanese sufferers received every cent collected. This county contributed $380 of this immense sum of money.

Wood to Pacify Moros. Washington, Oct. 24.—Governor General Wood of the Philippines cabled the war department that he is leaving for the Moro country in Mindanao, where the tribes are reported to be in a rebellious humor. The Moros are hereditary enemies of the Spaniards, it was pointed out, and are chafing under what they declare to be unnecessary police regulations executed by the Filipino constabulary. They are said to be moving for independence from the Philippines rather than from the United States.

CRABBE ACT UPHHELD Violator of Findlay Ordinance Loses in Ohio Supreme Court. Columbus, Oct. 24.—The Crabbe prohibition act and the city ordinances conforming to it were upheld by the supreme court in ruling on an appeal made by Charles White from his conviction of violating a Findlay ordinance against liquor.

White was guilty of illegal possession under the ordinance, which is identical with the Crabbe act. His conviction was affirmed by the court of appeals. He then went to the supreme court, claiming the Crabbe act and the ordinance to be unconstitutional because of an alleged discrimination—an immunity existing in the act in favor of occupants or owners of bona fide private dwellings, under which it is lawful for such occupant or owner to possess or give away intoxicants. He claimed this angle of the act gives immunity to the fortunate for an action which is a crime for the homeless.

BIG POTATOES

John C. Stevenson Raised 1140 Bushels of Spuds on 2.9 Acres.

The highest yield of potatoes reported in Pickaway county for the present year was made by John C. Stevenson, of Jackson township. The potatoes were of the Carmen variety. The field contained by actual measurement 2.9 acres and yielded 1140 bushels, or an average of 393 bushels per acre. The potatoes were of the finest quality to be found any place. By actual count there was less than one potato under two inches in diameter in every six feet of a row as the potatoes lay on the ground.

Mr. Stevenson saves his own seed each year and is very particular in selecting his seed, even to the extent of selecting from plants that have shown themselves resistant to blight.

Hundreds Charged With Murder. Tokio, Oct. 24.—More than 250 persons accused of murdering 400 Koreans and 60 Japanese during the two days of the earthquake terror are being arraigned one after another. Many have been held in jail since their arrest during and immediately following the disaster. Hysteria was widespread following the quake and mobs milling through the streets killed many Koreans and Japanese Socialists.

Absurd Old English Law. Under the English common law no one has a right to bathe in the sea. This was decided by the courts a hundred years ago, and an attack on the decision at the beginning of this century failed to upset it, the higher court deciding that in the strict legal sense one could fish in the sea but could not bathe in it.

Save Telegraph Poles. Of 1,558 telegraph poles in the Montgomery-New Orleans line, which were pressure-treated with a light creosote oil, 1,040 poles were still sound after 16 years, says the American Forestry Magazine. In 91 per cent of the cases of decay, the fungi had entered the wood through checks and shakes.

Pressed His Suit.

When the fine old mansion of Chatham, on the Rappahannock, was sold a few years ago, a young teacher said to her sewing school in the parish house of St. George, "You are all Fredericksburg children, and ought to know something of its history, but I do not suppose any one of you knows a thing about Chatham."

To her surprise a little girl piped up: "Yes, I do, Miss Clara; papa read it aloud from the paper."

"Then tell the others, Sally."

"At Chatham General Lee had his coat ironed," answered Sally triumphantly.

The teacher was perplexed until she found in the daily paper the phrase: "It was at Chatham that Gen. Robert E. Lee pressed his suit with the lovely Miss Custis."

Winter Rye Grown in All Parts of CountryIts Production Increased in Last Few Years.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Winter rye is the hardiest of all cereals. It can be grown in all parts of the country, says the United States Department of Agriculture, but is most profitable in the northern and eastern states. Its production in the United States has increased rapidly during the past few years, due chiefly to a heavy foreign demand, high-priced labor, low yields of wheat, and the development of improved varieties of rye. It is grown largely as a cash grain crop in the western half of the country, but is used also for pasture, as a green-manure or nurse crop and to smother weeds.

The ordinary time for sowing winter rye in the northern part of North Dakota and Minnesota is about September 1, with later dates in sections south of this. Many farmers will find it profitable to sow winter rye yet this fall, using grain stubble, corn ground, fall-plowed land, or summer fallow, if climatic conditions permit, the department believes. Sowing on grain stubble is often the most profitable because of the cheaper cost of production. The grain should be sown with a drill at the rate of four to six pecks per acre.

In the important rye-producing western states the average acre value of the rye crop is somewhat less than that of wheat. While the yields of rye usually are higher than those of wheat, the price is much less, being largely determined by the foreign markets which use most of our crop. At low prices rye cannot be grown for grain at a profit except under good management and in favored localities, the Department of Agriculture says. While rye makes good hay, green manure, pasture, or a nurse crop for legumes, it is not a suitable concentrated feed for live stock unless mixed with other grains. It is too heavy and sticky and is not very palatable feeding tests show. When fed in mixtures rye has a feeding value lower than corn, but nearly equal to that of barley.

Keeping Extra Team in Slack Seasons Is Costly

Did you ever stop to figure out just how much it was costing you to keep an extra team on hand in slack seasons, or to have them eating off the farm when they were idle during the winter months. The cost of keeping a horse one year in 1921 averaged about $100, according to figures made up by the Department of Agriculture. Feed and bedding made up about 60 per cent of this figure, not forgetting to figure what the pasture was worth that the horses used.

With this in mind, it is not only easier to see that a farmer can estimate pretty closely whether it is worth something to keep an extra team that is idle most of the time, or to raise colts and dispose of the older horses every year or two. There are a good many progressive farmers who have found that it pays to raise a couple of colts each year, to make the mare pay a little of her cost back. Then they are in position to sell off an extra horse or two if they find there is no real need for keeping him during the slack season.

Hogs Take First Place Among Ohio Live Stock

Hogs and sheep have changed places in the farming scheme of Ohio since 1860. Then, the census showed more than 3,000,000 sheep and 2,000,000 hogs. Now it shows something over 3,000,000 hogs and 2,000,000 sheep. All other forms of live stock have increased during the same 60-year period, although since 1900 horses and mules show a net decrease. The equine population of Ohio in 1920 is reported in the census as 842,318. Poultry shows the greatest increases in numbers, from 8,000,000 to 13,000,000 between 1880 and 1890, and then steadily about 2,000,000 each decade to the present total of 20,232,637.

More Alfalfa, Less Corn, Slogan of Many Farmers

"More alfalfa and less corn" is the slogan of many farmers right now. Help is getting scarcer, corn is beset with numerous ills, and soils are becoming more difficult to handle. Alfalfa builds up soil, instead of wearing it out, and in all dairy districts an acre of alfalfa is worth three times as much as an acre of corn. Ten tons of corn silage contains about 280 pounds digestible protein, while an acre of alfalfa making four tons of hay would contain 832 pounds of protein. One acre of alfalfa making four tons is worth right now about $100. One acre of corn making 50 bushels is worth now about $35.

Cabbage and Turnips Do Well in Pit Storage

If the cellar space is limited, cabbage and turnips can be well-cared for by pit storing. Select a high spot where the water drains off quickly. Dig a trench three feet wide and two feet deep. Floor with boards. Put in the vegetables and then lay on a light covering of straw. Put boards over this, providing a small opening at the top for ventilation. Cover with eight to twelve inches of dirt. Apples may be kept in the same way. There is seldom any loss from such a pit.

HER EXILE

By JANE JORDAN

(©, 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)

SHE came among them in strange reticence; tactfully aimed questions met with no success. There was a kind of haughtiness about the new resident which forbade intimacy. Later it was the exacting townsfolk who encouraged the coldness. Mrs. Gay was not desirable, they decided. True, her frocks in their modish good taste were superior, and the bungalow she had taken the finest in town.

There was craning of necks on Sunday when the remote neighbor attended service at the beautiful stone church, whose ancient date was registered on the doorpost. The organ was the pride of all. It was the gift of a poor great musician who had come from Plainville in his boyhood.

Rupert Rolf had repeatedly promised to return to his old home town to give an exhibition of his skill. The promise had been unrealized.

One day printed placards announced that the musician was to arrive that week in Plainville; the following Sabbath he would play upon the gift organ in the beautiful church.

The placard in the store window seemed to scream at her with its red letters—Rupert Rolf! Rupert Rolf! And next Sabbath he was to play at the church she attended. Well, might she not still attend?

"Good-by," said the little girl; "my mamma would not want me to stop. Oh, Mrs. Gay, your eyes are wet."

Mrs. Gay laughed shakily. "Why, so they are," she said.

She wore a dark dress the day of Rupert Rolf's church recital. She went early to take her seat in the gallery, and sat palpitating throughout the preliminary opening of the service.

The minister explained that he was waiting, with little hope, the appearance of Rupert Rolf. The musician had not arrived in the town as expected, detained by engagements, but he had sent a letter, assuring his presence if possible, at the morning service.

The allotted time of waiting passed. The minister looked, smiling, over his people. "Our usual organist is out of town," he said. "I wonder if some one will not volunteer to play for us this morning? Please," he begged—and paused. There was no response; again the request was given.

"This is an unusual circumstance," the minister explained, troubled. "Will not some one kindly help in this manner?"

Again no response. Some one arose in the gallery—signified her willingness.

The audience could not see the volunteer organist who went swiftly to take her place before the keys. They saw a dark-clothed back, an enveloping small hat.

The music poured forth. It was an offertory. This was a musician indeed who played for them; untrained ears recognized the sympathetic skill, the beautiful rendering of a great composition.

She stood a moment, finding her way—the volunteer organist was the disapproved Mrs. Gay. Her face shone white and sweet beneath the drooping brim of the prim black hat—then she was seated beyond their sight. The minister came down the pulpit stair hurriedly afterward that he might not miss her, to extend his thanks. Many lingered, looking back curiously. A man arose in the rear of the building—a distinguished-looking blonde man. He, too, pressed hurriedly forward until he stood with the minister, and the one who had come to his assistance. But the man's hand went out first to the woman—"Gay," he murmured chokily; "Gay!"

The little woman smiled; a smile which set her blue eyes all at once ashine. "Rupert!" she answered him; the minister waited. Suddenly his hand went out to the man. "Rupert Rolf," cried Reverend Roberts. "Here and I did not see you."

"I arrived very late," the musician replied. "My substitute was already at her post filling acceptably my place." He whirled about. "Mr. Roberts," said Rupert Rolf, "let me present to you—my wife."

The minister hesitated—"Mrs. Gay." "Gay," said the musician, "is my wife's given name. To you I may as well now explain. My wife and I were rival musicians. We met abroad, upon a musical tour. After our marriage we traveled together giving recitals. I had lived but for my music before I met her. You know, my life was so ordered. And—in an artist's madness of pride—I found myself humiliated one night, the very night I had so wished to excel—by my wife's superior performance. I and my loud attempt was lost, in her glory; can you understand a man's bitter jealousy? Now—I am overwhelmed at that madness. I know not what reproaches I brought to my wife—I know that next day she left me secretly, and my most absorbing effort to find her was unavailing. In order to place me first in the musical world which she thought my all—she had effaced herself completely. And—the musician's eyes, filled with remorseful tears, met those of his wife—and broke my heart," he finished.

She met the townspeople gracefully, the gifted wife of the famous musician. "Such a charming pair!" the residents said. "No doubt it was Mr. Rolf's wish that his wife remain unknown among us until he himself might present her."

BEASTS MENACE LIFE IN AFRICA

Former German Territory Over-run With Lions—Missionaries Clash.

London.—All is not joy in the life of British officials in Tanganyika territory, formerly German East Africa. Lions, leopards and elephants menace the population; missionary jealousy bewilders the pagan natives, and witchcraft, practiced by the wild Wapare of the Moshi district, causes many helpless infants to be put to death annually.

Aspects of life in this new British territory are described in the 1922 report of the country. Big game multiplied rapidly in Tanganyika during the war. Lions frequently satisfy their taste for human flesh at the expense of life. Their boldness is incredible, and whole villages have been terrorized by their presence. In the first half of the year rewards were paid for the destruction of 300 lions and 800 leopards. In Tabora district alone 67 people were killed by lions.

Natives Are Helpless.
Elephants do great damage to crops, often ruining a whole plantation in a single night, or, entering the villages, they strip the roofs of grain stores and scatter or consume the contents. The native too often assumes a fatalistic attitude in the presence of disaster, and becomes unwilling or unable to help himself.

In Tanganyika witchcraft has as fatal effects on infants as wild beasts have on adult natives. To the influence of the medicine men, says the report, may be attributed the barbarous practice of infanticide which prevails among the Wapare in the Moshi district. Children, born with some abnormality, or the offspring of parents who have failed to undergo initiation into certain tribal ceremonies, are done to death by deliberate starvation and neglect, or by exposure to the unhealthy climate of the low country. Often parents would not of their own accord abandon such children, and in many cases have preferred to give them away to strangers.

Rivalry Among Missionaries.
When the elders of the tribe were addressed on this matter, there was a decided tendency to recognize its evils and to adopt more enlightened ideas, but a few were against the abolition of the custom on the ground that the destruction of the tribes certainly would follow. According to these sages, life is altogether too precarious, and the number of acts or omissions which they can cite as being fatal is amazing; even to plant a tree was pronounced to be equivalent to dooming one's self to death.

Another difficulty confronting British administrators in the territory is that of rivalry among missionaries. "It is greatly to be regretted that a spirit of jealous rivalry has manifested itself in certain districts between Christian missions of different denominations," the report declares. "It arises from a very natural and sincere belief in the superiority of that branch of the common faith which it is their pride and their duty to preach to the heathen, but it has often resulted in an undignified competition to extend the scope of the mission beyond limits which a proper degree of influence and control would demand, and in attempts to set up schools in juxtaposition of those of another denomination. This open display to the pagan of religious differences cannot but react to the damage of the Christian faith."

Natives Bewildered.
"Christian missionaries, by offering one doctrine here, another close by, and still another a few miles away, must achieve little more than the complete bewilderment of the pagan native, and it would be well if Christian societies would recognize that the principle of spheres of influence is ultimately to the clear advantage of Christianity as a whole, no less than to that of pagan populations."

Sample Houses Sent to Prospective Home Buyers

London.—Sending little "sample" houses to home builders, is the plan of salesmanship being used by some London architects. These models are complete in every detail and are designed to inspire pride of ownership in the person to whom they are mailed. Facing a housing shortage, rivaling that of any American metropolis, many residents of London have bought home sites in the city's suburbs and are confronted with the problem of selecting the type of home to be built. To help them, the architects have started the new industry of building models that are mailed to possible buyers.

Mrs. Lundberg has not seen her husband since he bundled her into a cab and sent her home a few minutes after they were married, she said.
